Initial Week of Period of Returning Flowers and Sunshine
Brings Forecast of Future—Resume of Pleasing
Events of Past Week in Lima Society

(By ROSEMARY CHRISTEN)

THE first week of the delightful month of May was a splendid forecast of what the remainder of this month and those to follow will bring in the social world. May was afforded opportunities to enjoy several pretty and attractive gatherings and the calendars for the coming weeks will, doubtless, be graced with many more lovely affairs, such as numerous during the spring and early summer months.

Monday, three of the organizations prominent in clubdom enjoyed a pleasant afternoon at the Gayer home in Shawnee, when the members of the Lotus club were hostesses to the members of the Arbutus and Women's clubs. This gathering was only one of the numerous joint meetings which these three clubs have enjoyed in the course of the past two years.

The annual May Day breakfast at Trinity church Tuesday morning under the auspices of the Mercy League of King's Daughters was in a splendid success, the attendance being most gratifying.

Members of the W. C. T. U. from city as well as from nearby towns gathered in the United Brethren church Thursday. Several very interesting talks were given by Mrs. George Richards, Columbus, state president, and at 6 o'clock a banquet served at the church. The main event of the evening was the story contest, in which Mrs. H. H. Columbus Grove, was the successful contestant, being awarded a gold medal.

Thursday, Mrs. W. J. Galvin read a number of friends at a pretentious party at her home on State. Mrs. J. E. During the play which followed, Mrs. Theodore Michael, Mrs. Blatner, Mrs. Benjamin Baum, Mrs. P. J. Zanone, Mrs. Woreibaum and Mrs. Simmons successful.

SUMMER FURS ARE WITH US TO STAY

By ELOISE

Fur scarfs and chokers for summer wear are with us to stay. At least they will stay with us for the 1921 summer and they are having such a vogue that it is doubtful whether they will pass out with one or even two more seasons. Shops are showing them with all the new suits and one-piece frocks in their displays and the well-dressed woman is sure to have one of these small neckpieces of the lighter pelts for summer wear.

The most popular scarfs are made of stone of Baum marten in one or two-skin effects. Squirrel, opossum, chinchilla, natural ringtail and ermine are also much wanted. The animal scarf is also popular and is usually of fox or wolf, either natural or dyed.

This very effective little scarf here is made of three sable skins. It permits of various arrangements and fastenings and is the very smartest accessory millady can boast of in her wardrobe. It is particularly becoming with the tailored suit or frock.

Members of the Delta Alpha class of South Side church of Christ will hold their monthly business meeting at the home of Mrs. Harry Johns, 408 E. Eureka-st., Tuesday evening.

Art Study club will meet with Miss Lenore Smith Thursday evening. Mrs. C. E. Schell will give a talk on "John Sargent and His Works" while Miss Lenore Smith will have for her subject "George Bernard."

Lotus club afternoon at Mrs. Harry L. Gayer's lovely home in Shawnee was one of their annual treats at this interesting place which has for several years been opened to the club for a May day party. On this occasion, however, there were added to the guest list, the members of the Woman's club and the Arbutus club, Mrs. Mayme Mitchell Hesse, Bowler, Colorado, a former member of the Woman's club, being one of the favored guests.

The music was a rare treat given by Miss Violet Bradley and her college friend Miss Emily Getzmann, Minneapolis, Minn., both being most generous in responding to the repeated encores.

One unusual feature was given by Mrs. J. K. Bannister, who had arranged a group of spoken songs, (a) Love's on the High Road, music by Dane; (b) "The Waltz," a most rhythmic number by Dunbar; (c) and "Itchen" "Heels" and "Spring Fever" words by Dunbar; music by Torrence. Another group was "Red Fellows" by Daly and "Little Boy" words and music by Paul Bliss, one of Ohio's composers.

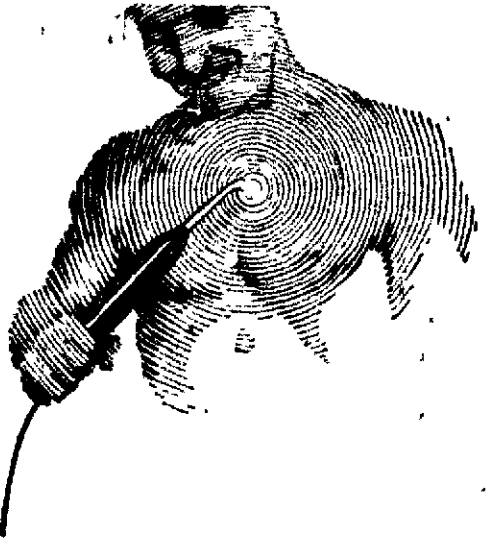

By request Mrs. Bannister gave a charming poem of her own "Lamp Light," music by Henry Helm. Announcement was made of the Woman's club afternoon in June at the home of Mrs. E. A. Williams, S. Cole-st., at which time the three clubs will be entertained. The Delphian club is to join with these clubs next season in the lecture course.

Antioch college was founded in 1853 and was the first college in America to permit girls to graduate with the boys. The educational opportunities have always attracted people of note from the east, Emerson, Edward Everett Hale and Hawthorne being frequent visitors in the early days of the college.

Before the Civil war, Yellow Springs was a very noted summer resort for wealthy Southern families, a number of them taking so much interest in the college that they volunteered to give it a substantial endowment providing the trustees would drop from their clause the words which granted the permission of girls and boys of all races and colors to attend the college. This they refused to do and today it remains as founded and still continues to draw pupils from the New England states nearly.

Within a few weeks Lima is expected to have another Business Women's club, this one being modeled on the lines of one in New York, which has proven successful. The membership will be limited at first to 100 and the departments will be as follows: Group one: Office managers, private secretaries and stenographers; group two, Bookkeepers, comptometer and adding machine operators; group three, saleswomen and department store heads; group four, teachers of music, singers and instrumentalists; group five, literary workers, authoresses and writers for the press.

The name of the organization will be "The Young Women's Cheerful Club of Lima," having for its motto, "She Profits Best Who Serves Most." There will be no president nor any others of the customary officials except the secretary-treasurer, who will be the intermediary thru whom the members will prefer their requests or make their complaints, which go before the chairman of the five committees as a board of adjudication.

One of the innovations will be the club graphologist who will make a graphology of each member as she comes into the organization, this being filed for future use.

One of the club's most important functions will be found in the employment department, in which the graphological and other records of each member will be at all times available for securing new positions, reinstatements and readjustment of existing positions.

The technical details are being worked out now with the assistance of a stenographer, studying law in the night classes at the City College. It happened at this time Miss Barondess, while associated with a number of artists in the club, learned of the existence of her exquisite voice.

She is now one of New York's greatest sopranos, having recently made a wonderful success in Lima, Peru and Havana, Cuba with the Escala Opera company as well as in recital in Carnegie hall, New York. Miss Barondess is the daughter of a prominent New York labor leader.

The various Lima committee chairmen have not as yet been named but the club is expected to constitute one of the city's most important organizations of business women, many of whom are members of the Young Women's Christian association and others prominent in charitable and religious work of various kinds.

Mother's Day

"Mother" is the most wonderful word in every language in this great universe. Through the beneficence of our Supreme Maker, we are all placed on the same level by having had one of God's Greatest Creations—A Mother.

On this day, set aside by proclamation of his excellency the Governor of Ohio, is it not well for us all to turn our minds and thoughts to She—who has so willingly and patiently made such innumerable sacrifices, that we might ourselves enjoy that which, she so readily deprived herself of?

Most appropriate at this time, it is well to remember that as a special tribute to our Dear Mothers, it would be in thorough keeping for us all to visit

St. Rita's or The City Hospital

Thursday, May 12th, and there contribute, according to our means, in memory of that great self-sacrificing Devoted Mother of Ours.

"Don't Do It, Not Now," Girl is Told

Sadistic Swain Seeks Acquaintance of Girl Residing in Another City

Plaint of Woman Whose Husband is Insanely Jealous—She Fears Him

Dear Miss Smart: I am a girl of 19 and in love with a divorced man. He has not been divorced long, but he seems to be deeply in love with me and wants to marry me. He is very good to me and buys me candy and takes me places. Do you think that I should marry him?

JUST A GIRL

WHEN a man is divorced it is evident that he has failed to make one woman happy. Of course, there are many exceptions to this. Very often the wife is at fault, but in a case such as this, where the man immediately becomes interested in another young woman and showers his attentions upon her, it certainly looks very suspicious. Often, of course, divorce results from the union of two natures which are very inharmonious and a second marriage may prove a success, providing careful judgment is exercised in the choice of a second mate. There are other cases where a person is too selfish to try to make any marriage happy and successful.

You are very young now and I would advise you to wait a year or two to see if your love for this man is really sincere and not mere fascination. It will be a splendid test for both of you and if at the end of that time you care as much for him as you do now and likewise if he holds the same love and admiration for you, you would be justified in marrying him and proving to him that a marriage can be happy.

Dear Miss Smart: There is a girl out of town with whom I would like to get acquainted. I would like to be proper for me to write to her and ask to call upon her. What would be the proper way in writing the letter?

O. L. P.

A correspondence such as you mentioned would not be exactly conventional. I think it would be very wise for you to wait until you are properly introduced. Perhaps you have a friend who is acquainted with the young woman and who would be willing to vouch for your character and give you an introduction to her thru the mail.

Dear Miss Smart: (1) Is it proper for a girl to take hold of a boy's arm or for a boy to take hold of a girl's arm when walking down the street or thru a crowd? (2) Please give me a good cake recipe.

(1) It is proper for the boy to take the girl's arm, especially when crossing the street or going thru a crowd. Many boys and young men should be more careful in this than they are. (2) MAPLE CAKE: Cream one-half cup of butter and lard, melted, with one half cup of brown or maple sugar. Add the well beaten yolks of two eggs. Sift together one cup of flour, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon soda and one half teaspoon of salt. Add alternatively with one half cup of milk. Bake in two layers. Make the filling and frosting as follows: Roll one cup of maple (or brown sugar) and one-half cup of white sugar with enough water to dissolve and it will form a hard ball in cold water. Have the whites of the two eggs beaten to a stiff froth and pour the boiling sugar and water slowly over them, beating all the time.

Dear Miss Smart: I am a married woman. Haven't been married for a year, yet my husband is jealous of me. He threatens to kill me and he tried to kill me this afternoon. We were out in our machine. He tried to break the steering wheel so we could run off the steep bank. He accuses me of being with other men every evening when he comes home from work. He bought a revolver and he says he is going to kill me with it. There was an agent who came to the door. It was a man. My husband came in and called the agent everything he could think of. The agent told him he was awfully sorry and he wouldn't come in for anything if he had any known. I cry every night after I go to bed. When he takes these jealous fits he says I must be doing something wrong. He is doing or saying. I am not allowed to go outside of the yard and he is with me and when we go on the street I don't dare to look at him. He is just so jealous he can't sleep at night. What can I do?

ANXIOUSLY WAITING

Your husband certainly must be very jealous if he can't sleep or eat. It is said that when one is in love they can't eat but I didn't know affectionate jealousy inclined in the same manner.

Your husband should be ashamed to accuse you of such things and to look so greatly in his faith and trust in you. A person can never be happy until they learn to overcome this trait.

The only thing for you to do is to name your husband and prove to him that it is only he for whom you are. Explain to him that you love him, you trust him and that he in turn should hold this same feeling toward you.

One of the really splendid scenes in this appealing photo-drama.

Backed by a superb cast Vera Gordon comes to the Lyric theater today is "The Greatest Love," a picture which for genuine heart interest and entertainment possibilities is far and away beyond the ordinary. Now she is here in a picture of her own and when you have seen "The Greatest Love" you will have something to think about, something to haunt your memory, something which will not only entertain but which will have helped you.

This picture is rich in heart interest and pathos. It is actual life on

NORTH STOCK COMPANY TO CLOSE HERE-THE THEATRE OFFERINGS

LAST WEEK OF NORTH STOCK CO.

Popular Theatrical Organization To Close Season Here On Thursday

"The Girl of the Sea" To Be Staged, Beginning at the Orpheum Today

ANNOUNCEMENT was recently made by the management of the Orpheum Theatre that owing to unavoidable conditions, the North Bros. Stock Co., which has been appearing at that theatre for the last several weeks, will terminate its engagement in this city on Thursday of this week. During its brief stay, the theatre-goers have enjoyed and enjoyed the productions and especially the actors of the North Co., and many will regret that this week marks the close of their engagement here. However, John Kane, the director-manager of the company, states that the company will return when the season opens in the fall.

As a closing attraction, "The Girl of the Sea" will be offered patrons. This little comedy-drama has three comedy parts and is hailed as best production the North Stock organization has yet given us. Miss Peggie Dainty, Charles Richards, Rosamond Thompson, Mr. McMillan and each and every member of the company will be seen in an attractive role and the story is expected to prove one of their most popular numbers.

Because this is the last week, the program will change Sunday instead of Monday, as heretofore. Therefore, on Sunday, both matinee and evening will see "The Girl of the Sea" as the attraction at the Orpheum, continuing until Thursday night.

The future policy of the Orpheum has not been announced by Manager Shaw, but it is expected that a musical comedy company will be secured to round out the season which closes within a few weeks. Full information and announcements regarding the policy will be made at an early date.

The Lyric Pictures

VERA GORDON again exalts the glory of motherhood in a new special "The Greatest Love," which opens a four-day engagement today at the Lyric Theatre.

The well-known "mother" in "Humoresque" rises to new emotional heights in this powerful interest production, in which she is cast as Mamma Lantini, who with her husband and two children left the sunny shores of Italy to find prosperity and plenty in America. For years they manage to eke out a frugal living, Papa Lantini working on plaster models and Mamma Lantini rearing her family and making friends with her poor relations. One day little Lorenzo was run over and injured by the horses of a wealthy man, Mr. Manton, which incident had an important effect on the lives of the Lantini family, for Mr. Manton took a great interest in the manful little boy and to make amends for the injury, promises to take charge of the boy's education.

Passing years brought a change of luck to the hitherto impoverished family. Papa Lantini became a great sculptor and Lorenzo had become a great architect. Mamma Lantini remained the same cheerful old soul and would often steal down to the tenement wherein she had spent so many years, to visit with her neighbors.

Besides the great human interest element throughout the production, there is a mystery in the course of the last few reels which adds greatly to the unmistakable worth of the picture as a whole. The cast supporting Miss Gordon is an excellent one, including Sally Crute, Yvonne Shelton, Hugh Huntley, Bob Watson and several others of prominence.

"The Greatest Love" is a picture in a hundred. To miss it is to miss one of the finest and best attractions the Lyric has given us.

On Thursday and for the remainder of the week, William Farnum comes to the Sigma theatre in "The Scuttlers."

The Majestic Pictures

THE Majestic's feature picture today is to be "The Mark of Zorro," which stars Douglas Fairbanks. Certainly "The Mark of Zorro" is the best picture Mr. Fairbanks has ever made, for Douglas has a red-blooded virile characterization to portray it in his usual competent manner.

The scenes of the story are laid in early California during the time when the Caballeros from Spain held sway. The characters all appear in the costumes of the period and the sets and atmosphere are peculiarly true to life.

Marguerite De La Motte, the leading lady in "The Mark of Zorro" is to be commended for her excellent work in the production. Noah Berry and Robert McKim also appear in the cast and minor roles are well taken.

"The Mark of Zorro" is a delightful picture, one that should not be missed by all-sheets fans.

The Faurot Pictures

A picture that marks the most significant advance of the screen will be displayed at the Faurot for five days starting today. It was produced by Jesse L. Lasky, directed by William DeMille. The author is Cosmo Hamilton, the scenarist Olga Printzlau. The cast, which is certainly entitled to that much betrayed term "all-star," includes Lila Lee, Lois Wilson, Conrad Nagel and Jack Holt for headlines. Others, not quite so famous but of decided ability, who will be seen are Betty Francis, Claire Mac Dowell, Charlotte (Peaches) Jackson, Charles Ogle, Vera Gordon in "The Greatest Love" at the Lyric theatre today.

Constance Talmadge in "Lessons in Love" at the Regent theatre today.

Mille in which he stated that it was "the most utterly satisfying, beautiful and human thing, all alive and throbbing, that has ever been created for the screen," and this you must admit is some admission for an author to make. As a rule they say that the author has utterly destroyed the child of their fancy. But of course, as you know and we know, Mr. DeMille is not in the habit of destroying anybody's ideals. Instead, he builds upon them, with that delightful fancy of his until you have a screen product that is a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

By and large, pro and con, we doubt if you'll find anything in town that will best "Midsummer Madness" for classy screen entertainment. It will be accompanied at the Faurot by the Pathe News and the Paramount Magazine, and he succeeded next Friday by the Realart production, "Out of the Chorus," in which Alice Brady is the bright particular star.

The Regent Pictures

A program of unalloyed merit is to be presented by the management of the Regent theatre for the forthcoming week, beginning today. The two photoplay features to be shown are "Lessons in Love" which stars Constance Talmadge and which opens a four day run at the Regent today. The other Mary Roberts Rinehart's well-known story "It's a Great Life" enacted by a top-notch cast including Cullen Landis, Molly Malone and Clara Horton.

Constance Talmadge is as full of fun and pep as ever in her new vehicle "Lessons in Love." It's a corking good comedy drama adapted from Douglas Murray's stage play "The Man From Toronto." The story deals with the attempts of two old men to choose a husband for their ward, a young lady with a very strong mind of her own. When one of them fails in his attempt to bring his nephew East to meet the girl, he plays "dead" leaving a will that his nephew shall inherit a fortune if he weds the girl. The report of his uncle's death brings the young chap East as a last courtesy, but he is determined that he will marry only the girl of his own choice. The situation is distasteful to the girl. She does not relish the idea of a prospective bride-groom, giving her the once over so she masquerades as a maid. The young man is very handsome and the "maid" flirts with him. Complications multiply and the big surprise is experienced when Uncle Henry "comes to life."

The role of Lella Calthorpe is ideally suited to the talents of Miss Constance and her interpretation of it is truly delightful. Kenneth Harlan, who played opposite her in "Dangerous Business" has the leading masculine role in "Lessons in Love." Others in the cast are George Fawcett, Flora Finch, James Harrison and Louise Lee.

Audiences who are weary of over-sophisticated heroines, of cave-man heroes and of artificial farces will see something fresh and original in "It's a Great Life" which opens at the Regent on Thursday. The hero is a boy of about sixteen, played by Cullen Landis. His distinguishing characteristics are an unholly appetite for food at all hours, a romantic attachment for young ladies, a penchant for practical joking and an imagination that stops at nothing. The picture is humorous as only the thoughts and aspirations of a young boy can be humorous. The supporting cast includes Molly Malone and Clara Horton.

Certainly the Regent's two feature attractions for the week are of the first-water each of the light, amusing story that is bound to entertain.

RARE ASSEMBLY OF MOVIES FOR PLAYGOERS OF LIMA THIS WEEK

UNUSUAL PROGRAM OF FILMS

Theatre-Goers To Be Favored This Week With Offerings of Rare Merit

Top-Notch Stars of the Screen World to Be Seen in Late Masterpieces

(BY ESTHER WAGNER)
NOT for weeks have theatre patrons been favored with a list of silver sheet attractions of such unusual proportions as the program announced by managers for the forth-coming week. Each play-house has made special effort to secure the very finest photoplays obtainable, with the result that the week's roster is about as complete and satisfying as one could desire.

Constance Talmadge, Cullen Landis, Vera Gordon, Lila Lee, Conrad Nagel, Ora Carewe, Milton Sills, William Farnum and Bryant Washburn are only a few of the featured players to be seen in cinema circles during the week.

The Faurot's feature offering for week consists of William DeMille's "Midsummer Madness" which has scored an unprecedented success wherever shown. The all-star cast includes Conrad Nagel, Jack Holt, Lila Lee and Lois Wilson. The picture is taken from Cosmo Hamilton's story "His Friend and His Wife."

For the last two days of the week, the Faurot will present Alice Brady in "Out of the Clouds" in which Miss Brady has a different characterization than she has ever had.

Constance Talmadge always a popular personage, appears today at the Regent in "Lessons in Love" a comedy-drama of the brand that have made Miss Constance so thoroughly well-liked. On Thursday a version of Mary Roberts Rinehart's book "Empire Builders" appears at The Regent. Cullen Landis is the youthful hero, with Clara Horton playing opposite.

The Sigma's program is a splendid one, opening today with "The Little Fool" from a Jack London tale. Milton Sills, Ora Carewe and Nigel Varrie have the leading roles.

Also a new Buster Keaton comedy in "Hard Luck" a comedy, which metropolitan critics have highly praised.

William Farnum, popular Fox star, appears at the Sigma the last three days of the week in "The Scene from "The Little Fool", Jack London's great story with Milton Sills at the Sigma theatre today.

Scuttlers" a picture that teems with action and suspense.

Vera Gordon, whose work in "Humoresque" made her famous, is starred in "The Greatest Love", a picture that gives Miss Gordon another of her famous mother roles. The supporting cast is a remarkable one. "The Greatest Love" is being featured today and for four days at the Lyric theatre.

"Man and His Woman" in the interesting title of the Lyric's feature picture for the last three days of this week.

The Majestic's program opens today with "The Mark of Zorro" by al means the best picture Douglas Fairbanks has ever made. On Tuesday comes "It Pays to Advertise" with Bryant Washburn in the leading role.

The Sigma Pictures

OPENING the week's roster of film attractions, at the Sigma theatre is a picturization of a famous Jack London tale, which you probably know under the name of "The Little Lady of the Big House." Its movie version, however, bears the caption "The Little Fool." One of the nicest things about the photoplay, aside from its worth as a story, is the exceptional cast. There's Milton Sills, always a favorite, Ora Carewe, one of the cleverest little leading ladies on the screen today, and Nigel Barrie, whose work as an actor is widely known.

The locale of the story is placed on a California Ranch, where live the Forresters. Paula, the wife, is much admired, and attracts all the men who are invited to the palatial home of her husband, Dick Forrester.

Evan Graham, and old chum wires Dick that he is coming to spend a month at the ranch. He arrives and promptly falls in love with Paula, who seems to return the affection he lavishes upon her. In forming her husband of his feelings, Graham tells Dick that he will leave the ranch but Dick is amused at the mere idea of another man loving his wife and is told that he can have her, if she really loves him. Henceforth Dick plays the game with a clear conscience.

The affair, however, progresses more than Dick thought it would and when it comes to a showdown he tells her that she need not hesitate between Graham and himself, for if she does not know which one she loves after being married twelve years, she may as well go.

The finale to this interesting train of events is surprise and everything turns out just as you would have it. Truly "The Little Fool" is a great picture, one that adheres closely to the famous novel from which it was taken.

Buster Keaton, known as the funniest comedian on the stage today, appears at the Sigma in "Hard Luck". No need to say, its a good one.

Annual Performance of Actors' Equity Association Breaks Previous Records

Fueled More Intense Between Equity And Church, Result of Sermon

"Spanish Love" Among Season Standards—Gossip if Rialto

(BY FREDERICK F. SCHROEDER)

NEW YORK — (Special) — Members of the Actors' Equity association gave their best to the annual benefit performance of the players' organization at the Metropolitan Opera House Sunday evening. The show broke all records in the amount cleared to keep the association going indefinitely. The total receipts amounted to $130,000. Aside from the gratifying financial result it was a good entertainment—for an "all star" cast. The Lambs used to have a monopoly of this sort of benefit shows. They were the only actors' club, and when the time approached for the big benefit all they had to do was to make a requisition of the vast supply of talent they had constantly on hand. It was often a case of the embarrassment of riches. But the Lambs could not do this any more. Their gates are barred against the gentler sex. They had no Desdemonas for their Othellos and no Julietts for their Romances. It was necessary to go back to the days and ways of Shakespeare and create the indispensable female support out of the oversupply of good-looking young men.

The Equity being a kind of "co-ed" association, the Sunday night benefit performance gave an equal opportunity to both sexes and almost every professional dancing couple in the various plays along Broadway was represented in some part of specialty. There was hardly a serious moment on the big stage. The program was designed to drive dull care away and much of the show partook of sublimated vaudeville and refined travesty, with a number of well-known comedians and comic opera divas prominent in amusing sketches and specialty acts. The show made a pronounced hit and by a widespread request will be repeated Sunday evening.

Fuel has been added to the feud between the Equity and the church by a sermon preached by one of the sensational divines who in this particular instance spoke the minds of a lot of people about the current plays rather than about acting as a profession or theatre-going generally. The offender this time is the Rev. John Straton of one of the leading Baptist churches. He attacked the American stage as a rotten proposition, reeking with moral infamy, with the tide of its pollution flowing out of New York as a center of the corrupting of the entire nation. The theatre as developed here in New York," he declared, "attacks our whole moral fabric. Under its prostituted, commercialized ideal the crook is made a hero, stealing becomes a joke, the swaggering swearer is a good pal and a sensuous double meaning is the end of wit. Marital infidelity and illicit love are regarded as the real spice of life. The home is a necessary evil. It is a place to which we go when everything else is played out. The theatre today is the devil's church."

With some of these sentiments actors themselves agree and there would have been no ground for a quarrel had the reverend gentleman confined himself to panning the tendency in some quarters to prostitute the stage for commercial purposes. But he overshoot the mark when he said that in every divorce scandal that has shocked New York, especially in recent years, one or more actresses have figured.

The statement in itself is true, but one would have to scan a year's programs to discover the identity of the actresses to which the speaker referred. The word actresses, is an elastic one. There are hundreds of hangers-on that are spoken of as actresses by no one save the newspapers. If a girl has had even a remote connection with some performance she is always mentioned in a divorce case as an actress. A few years ago one such an actress figured in a divorce case. The nearest she came to deserving the title was her employment as a seamstress for a theatrical customer.

It is extremely unfair that a very respectable profession should have to suffer for the misdeeds of persons like this girl and preachers who are really concerned about uplifting the stage will not get far by indiscriminate and irresponsible unjust talk, which only shows that they have not really investigated the facts. More careful inquiry would have convinced Rev. Straton that there has not been tried in New York one divorce case in 15 years in which an actress of any standing whatever was named. If one chooses to call a bill-poster an actor he is equally at liberty to call the girl that serves the candy counter in the lobbies of some theatres an actress.

I hope Rev. Straton won't take it into his head to go to the Comedy Theatre and see "Just Married," the new farce by Adelaide Matthews and Ann Nichols. It is happily saved from overstepping the limits of propriety by a deft feminine touch, but falls gracefully within the category of plays in the pastor's index, exhortations. Vivian Martin, the motion picture star, looks very pretty and dainty as the young woman engaged to be married who finds herself in an embarrassing position aboard an ocean steamer with an amusing young man. This young man is very funny as an intoxicated Bostonian in evening clothes who suddenly decides to leave Bordeaux for America and uses the steamship ticket of his brother, who has preferred to spend his honeymoon ashore. An officious aunt places the heroine in the young man's state room, and the second act takes place when the young people awaken the next morning in the same state room, but in separate beds.

The situation is as old as the oldest farce, but the manner of treatment is new and around this climax the story revolves in a quite harmless and beguiling way. It might have been handled in a suggestive manner, but it is really more amusing than wicked because it is all so innately innocent. But it is one of those plays that lend itself peculiarly to Sunday sermons. To the more sophisticated it is childishly innocuous. People certainly seemed to enjoy it. Everybody tilted. Miss Martin is charming.

One thing the imported German films will do: They will wake up American producers of motion pictures to the fact that their preserves are no longer safe against poaching. The success of "Passion" was followed by the aquatic "Cabinet of Dr. Caligary," an amazing cubist conception which is slightly above the heads of the average movie fans; but one of the three leading houses announces the third week of "Decapitation" and describes it as a record-breaker. It is the first time that three weeks have been given over to one picture. Some of the big movie concerns are demanding Congressional legislation to protect them against legitimate competition in a field in which they have claimed supremacy over all the rest of the world, but they are meeting with little sympathy from the press. A high tariff on imported screen plays meets with little support from the big independent theatres, which are inclined to rejoice that they may occasionally escape the exactions of the native producers who levy a heavy taxation on the box office whenever they release a film that draws the public. The general advice given the producers is to make better pictures.

"Spanish Love" is now among the season's standards. It has passed its 330th performance. "Three Live Ghosts" at the Nora Bayes Theatre has had more than 250 performances but closed Saturday night to go to Boston. Belasco's production of Sacha Guitry's play, "Deburau," with Marilyn Miller has played to capacity houses since before Christmas or a total of more than 150 performances.

The Winter Garden has been decided upon as the place where the revival of "The Belle of New York" will take place. It will be the summer attraction of that house.

The English melodrama, "The Night Watch," closes at the Century Saturday evening, and two nights later a decided event is promised in the first performance of "The Last Waltz" by Oscar Straus. It is described as "the most colossal and elaborate musical production ever seen on the American stage, a musical masterpiece"—all of which may be gentle chaff by the press agent. But the fact that to composer in the composer of "The Chocolate Soldier" and "The White Dream," has some significance and the fact that Eleanor Painter has been engaged for the leading part, with three or four additional artists like Dallas Welford, adds materially to the interest of the announcement.

The new offerings this week are "The Tyranny of Love," which for a time constituted a matinee attraction and has now been materially aided by an improved cast; "The Sacrifice," a play of the American Revolution, which is on view at the Greenwich Village, and a revival of "The Servant in the House," with Walter Hampden in the part of Manson, which is created in the original production.

"The Sacrifice" deals with the career of Benedict Arnold and is an old-fashioned in its technique as it is old in period. Arnold is shown not only as a traitor to his country, but also as a near-traitor to the daughter of a rich Jew. She has given up father, friends and sweetheart, but is so repelled by his conduct that she devotes herself to being revenged. The play is signally amateurish and seems to be intended, like the earlier venture of Louis Mann in "The Unwritten Chapter," to present a plea for the Jews. The author is Morris Wiltman, a daughter of the author is cast for the part of the girl.

BUICK

Buick Value Is Lasting Value

Only the things that endure are worth while.

This is true, no matter in what relation of life they are considered.

Friendships that last, business that repeats, character that endures, are the things that we seek—the ends that we strive to attain.

The Buick Motor Company, which builds the Buick car, and the Sturtevant-Jones Company, which markets it in Lima, are firm believers in all these things.

The Buick factory goes to unusual lengths to incorporate in the car the mechanical principles and the elements that make for long and satisfactory service.

The Sturtevant-Jones Company, which sells the car, goes to the same unusual lengths to care for it in such a way that its owner shall have uninterrupted and satisfactory use of his investment.

The net result—lasting, enduring value.

If you do not own a Buick, make the first step toward its possession today.

CHASING RUM-RUNNERS ON THE BORDER

Thrilling Battles Day and Night With Smugglers

How whiskey is smuggled into the United States as seen by a New York Herald man: . . . "Came the booze carriers, each weighed down with forty cases of whiskey. . . . And well back, the customs car thundering in the alcoholic wake with men precariously hanging on the running board, pistols ready. . . ."

Firsthand Story of How Eighteenth Amendment Is Flouted by Professional Bootleggers and Vast Stream of Liquor Pours Across Border

Copyright, 1921. THE NEW YORK HERALD.

RUM-running from Canada into the United States, especially across the New York State line, has made the Eighteenth Amendment a joke to thousands of citizens otherwise perfectly lawabiding. The whiskey smugglers are so bold in their extensive operations that conditions are unparalleled. To ascertain the actual facts and present to its readers a pen picture THE NEW YORK HERALD sent one of its staff men to the border. He was out both day and night with officials in the United States and Canada, and the facts he presents furnish a thrilling story seldom seen in actual news reporting. Possibly the only like smuggling incidents in history might be the brandy smuggling across the English Channel early in the nineteenth century or the cotton blockade runners of civil war days.

By W. A. DAVENPORT.

BETWEEN Fort Covington, N. Y., and the desperate collection of wheel ruts that connects Dundee and St. Agnes, Quebec, runs the Mary Reilly road. It is entirely proper to refer to the Mary Reilly road as running. Speed and vigor are its chief characteristics. It cuts a section of the border country so barren that, taking it from the natives themselves, migratory crows have learned to carry a lunch when compelled to traverse it.

It comes by its name from its once triumphant goddess, who now has passed into history—Mary Reilly, whose road house, bisected by the Canadian-United States boundary line, was almost everything except a church. Only the foundations of Mary Reilly's remain. The place simply blew up one night. An ambitious young literary man will one day write the history of Mary Reilly's and thereby make himself famous. The chapter he devotes to the last night of Mary Reilly's will make him. Three murders before midnight was too much—entirely too much. No house could stand that. So Mary Reilly's blew up, burned down and all that remained was the ghost of the place—a be-ghost that sits upon the crumbling walls drunk and defiant and refusing to let the fact that to-day the Mary Reilly road is lawless and wild.

It was for the Mary Reilly road we set forth much as one goes fishing or deer hunting. We knew that the game was there and knew that we'd hear and probably see it. The idea was to bag it.

More Booze Comes Over the Road Than the Sheriff Can Estimate

"There's no use trying to estimate how much booze is coming into the States over the Mary Reilly road," said the Sheriff. "It can't be done any more than you can figure how much hootch is coming in over the fifty roads and gullies between Malone and Rouse's Point. All I can tell you is that it's coming in. Let's go!"

Twelve months ago, when rum-running from Canada to America was amateur sport, Government or county officials, becoming tired of the night riotings that were an integral part of the running, were wont to hop into a motor car and take up a stand along a main thoroughfare. When the smugglers came along the guardians of law and order would hold them up or scare them to death with bullets if they tried to avoid capture by stepping on the gas. Like as not the amateur, explaining that he had a few bottles under the seat, was given a good talking to about noise and permitted to go.

But then there was plenty of liquor in the States. We didn't need to ask Canada for whiskey. You could buy your favorite brand in your favorite place at little more than your favorite price. The Eighteenth Amendment was nothing but an amendment and had nothing to do with a man's liquor.

Naturally enough we drank all that and finding our thirst unquenched struck out for more. So nowadays when liquor comes across the border it comes in automobile trains, three, four and five huge touring cars roaring down from Montreal night and day, forty, fifty, sixty miles an hour. They come down a hundred yards between cars. Left to themselves they take to and keep the side roads, eschewing the larger towns. But bedevilled by customs men, Volsteaders and sheriffs, they hang to the hardest and smoothest roads, the shortest routes, and may God protect the tourist. It used to be that they travelled at night—stealthily, fearfully. Now they travel when they get a carful, be it noon or midnight.

Watching the Booze Cars

Roar Through Malone

The scout car leads the way, its horn roaring and its exhaust pipe working like a machine gun. Through the main street of Malone the pilot roadster flew. The street had cleared. The startled citizenry had taken to the sidewalks much as folks used to take to the cyclone cellars on Kansas way—by instinct. The roadster was making fifty miles anyway, having slowed up a trifle for traffic's sake. Behind her, hanging on like hounds after a rabbit, came the booze carriers—a Pierce Arrow, a Packard and a Cadillac—each weighted down with forty cases of whiskey and gin, and maybe a little champagne. Sixty-six hundred pounds on each set of wheels travelling south and west at fifty miles an hour through the centre of a law abiding village! And well back, far in the rear, the customs car thundering in the alcoholic wake with men precariously hanging on the running board, pistols ready to open fire when the open country is reached—provided the bandits haven't run out of gun range.

But that's digressing too far. Besides, it's somewhat misleading. Most of the booze running is still done at night. But the amateur has stepped out of the game. It's no longer a game; it's an industry. Rough citizens pilot the cars these days and nights. They're the sort of men who make good aviators or drive taxicabs in Paris.

But it's time to get going to the Mary Reilly road.

We took the Constable road. There were three cars—the Sheriff's and two huge Packards that the customs men had seized from unlucky rum runners who either hadn't run fast enough or who weren't familiar with the roads or who lacked the nerve that the successful smuggler must have. We skirted Bare Hill, a desolate roll of chalky dirt, crumbling sandstone and bleak spruce trees that appear to be protesting against their loneliness. A well clouded sky dimmed the moonlight. It was clear enough to see forms on the road fifty yards away.

Fast Mahel's Farm, a place full of reminiscence for Skid Metcalf, who drove the Sheriff's car. Past the Beaver Pines and Cascaet's to Trout River we drove and nothing happened. Charlie Cantwell, the customs man at Trout River, assured us that traffic was dull.

"Four cars went up but none has come down yet," he said. "Everything's straight enough so far to-night."

Back to Constable, where we took to a road which challenges the worst road on earth to a finish fight for the championship. And there we did some telephoning.

"A minute from now," observed the Sheriff, "every booze runner on the other side of the line will know we're out. Nothing but party lines, and as soon as a bell rings every party on the line's listening. And everybody's for the smugglers. A man can't steal a horse or a loaf of bread and get away with it. Folks won't let him. But you can't get it into the heads of folks that violating the Eighteenth Amendment's a crime—not yet you can't."

"Yes," added Skid Metcalf, "the booze runners know we're out. They knew it before we had left the village. They knew it in Fort Covington and Hogsburg and Dundee and Huntington before we were out into the open country. We ain't got no friends."

We bumped and careened along to the Pihald Farm. Skid turned the Sheriff's car into the lane leading up to the barn. The other cars hung back. The doors of the barn swung open and the yellow light of a lantern revealed a touring car backing out of the wagon shelter beneath the hay mow innocent of hay but full of booze. A grunt from the engine of our car and a flashlight swept the rocky meadow and came to a stop on the lane we occupied. The car bolted back into the barn and the doors swung shut again. There was no longer any use for secrecy, so we shot up to the cobbled approach to the ramshackle building.

It was like sea raiding. We threw a crew aboard the booze car—a chauffeur and a customs man—and handcuffed the chauffeur and the farmer together, consigning them to the rear seat of the captured car.

"Not so bad," commented the customs man. "Thirty-five cases of Scotch in the car and 200 more in the barn. The farmer's Louis Fortune. He quit farming two years ago. Threw out all such things as farm implements, horses and the like and laid in booze. One of the biggest relay and supply stations this side of the border. Well, that's that."

The prize went back toward Malone. We went on, still bent for the Mary Reilly road. We reached that haunted thoroughfare just before midnight. Two hundred yards south of the line and the ruins of Mary Reilly's the road splits. To the west, in fairly hard condition, it continued toward Fort Covington. To the east it shunts off toward Westville. We were still within the United States. The Canadian customs collectors were patrolling the Kensington-Dundee road to the north. It didn't seem possible that anything could get by us.

But from the north there came a prolonged, undulating roaring. If you've ever heard a German bombing plane honing through the night skies you know what that roaring sounded like. It was a heavy, sonorous drone, now loud, now softer—rhythmically and in lazy cadence like the sing song of the old tin musical toy you used to spin on the nursery floor.

"They're coming," grunted the customs man. "One car will lay across the road off the left fork and the other will be ready to block the right fork. Don't do any shooting unless he refuses to slack down. Wonder how in hell they got by the Canadians?"

The trap was set and we lay beside the ruins of Mary Reilly's. The Sheriff had a Winchester. The others had pistols.

Suppose Walter Johnson or Grover Alexander decided to heave bricks at your head and each brick, carrying everything that either gentleman could put on it, grazed your ears! The writer hereof thought of just that when those rum-runners passed us on the Mary Reilly road. There were three cars in that train. And those three cars were loaded to their tops. They carried no lights. Their horns were howling like dissolute hansbees. The left fork was blocked, but those alcoholic Valkyrie had no intention of taking that left fork. They rounded the turn to the right before the other official car had time to get under way. It was just as well. Had the right fork been blocked by a car there would have been chaos. The leading booze car took the tiny turn without sickening and it passed Mary Reilly's at forty miles an hour.

"Good God!" screamed Skid as he saw the turn made, "Barney Oldfield's driving that!"

A better man than Eddie Rickenbacker must have been driving the second car, for the boy at the wheel of that juggernaut decided to run for it. He gave his car everything he could muster and she fairly lurched the bowlder that made the turn in the road dangerous.

And the third car followed suit!

There were fewer than ten feet between them. The Sheriff's Winchester began cracking. The customs men's automatics joined in the refrain. If any one of those cars was hit we didn't discover it.

Pursuit of Rum Cars

Futile as Chasing Bullets

We followed them, of course. We might just as well have tried following the bullets. We reached Fort Covington to find the village deserted save for Aaron Scattergood, who lives somewhere up the Salmon River and has some sort of a watchmanlike job that keeps him out all night.

"Did I see 'em?" sneered Aaron. "What the hell do you think I am—deaf? Blind? Unless they've turned turtle or hit something they're passing through Massena by now, and Massena ain't moved an inch since last night, when it was twenty miles down the river. What are you, Volsteaders?"

"No. Customs men."

"Fired all the Volsteaders in these parts, didn't they?" demanded Aaron.

"Yes."

"One afternoon," laughed Aaron. "I'm standin' right here, and two Volsteaders stop a Studebaker with a big load."

"What you got there?" says the biggest of the Volsteaders.

"Seem I'm caught, it's booze," says the driver of the Studebaker.

"Where you goin'?"

"New York," replies the chauffeur.

"How'll you split with good fellers?" asks the Volsteaders.

"Fifty-fifty."

"Let's go," agrees the big Volsteaders, climbing in beside the bootlegger. "With me on the seat nobody'll stop you."

Aaron paused for a moment and then said:

"And there are them who complains that this ain't a free country!"

Fort Covington is on the American side of the line. A step north and you're in Dundee. The Canadian customs men—Wilson, McMullan, McCaffrey and McNaughton—came in with three captured cars and six prisoners.

"What you got there, for God's sake?" roared the Sheriff.

"Yeh, what you know about this?" grinned Wilson. "Two women. Hell, I don't know what to do with 'em."

Vast Stores in Canada Await Transport Into New York and Other Boundary States—Even Women Have Entered the Illicit Trade

"Runnin' hootch?" roared Wilson. "If you say a Pierce Arrow with forty-two cases of Scotch aboard is hootch you're right. They can't redeem their car to-night and we're turnin' them over to the women folks to make comfortable 'till mornin'."

It must be explained here that the Canadian law differs from the American in that the captured booze car is not confiscated by the Government, provided the owner or driver thereof can produce instantly the monetary value of the car. The capturing customs man assesses the value, and if the captive can produce the money at once he or she is permitted to retain the car. But the booze is confiscated. On this side of the line everything is confiscated—the car, the booze and the driver—provided, of course, the outfit is captured.

"That's a new one—girls driving hootch—ain't it?" demanded Murray Lee, the Syracuse reporter, who had come on in the third car.

Wilson Gives Them a Thrill On the Salmon River Road

"Comparatively," replied Wilson. "Practically everything's old nowadays."

We were getting under way again, for it was about 4 o'clock and we wanted to take up tactical positions on Bare Hill before daylight.

"Say," yelled Wilson, "if you journalists don't mind a bit of a thrill and can take the gaff if it's handed to you you're welcome to hit the trail with us over on this side some night soon."

We took to the Salmon River road and struck off over Bare Hill on one of the twenty narrow paths that wind through the scrub pine and skinny spruces. They used to be farm paths and cow lanes, these roads over Bare Hill. Now they are good and hard from motor car travel—heavy motor cars filled with bottled depth bombs made in Canadian cellars and shacks overnight to satisfy the American demand.

We hung to the crest of Bare Hill, screened from the road by a brush copse. Thirty minutes passed. The now familiar roar was heard off to the west.

"Little'll the Covington road with all he has," grunted the Sheriff. "He's due for a tumble this time."

The tumble followed. The Covington road is wide and hard. It is surfaced with concrete, and any self-respecting car can do sixty or seventy miles an hour thereon. We turned out of the Bare Hill trail and onto the road doing about sixty. We were on even terms with and abreast the bootlegger.

"Where you goin'?" screamed the Sheriff, unlimbering the Winchester.

"Goin' to hell," was the response. "Comin'?"

The rum-runner tried to ride us into the ditch, swerving to the middle of the road and stepping on his accelerator. But Skid can drive. Skid refused to turn out and the rum-runner headed for the ditch at the side of the road. The lip of the guilty crumbled.

It was admirable the way the bootlegger kept his wits about him. He had thrown on his emergency brake so hard that the heavy car, with its capacity load, bucked. But it had come to a stop, right side up.

FEW EARLY MARRIAGES; EACH YEAR SHOWS AGE JUMP

Average for Men Exceeds 30 in 1921 and Was 27 1-5 Thirteen Years Ago, While That for Women Is Nearly 26, as Against 22 4-5---Even Slacker Weddings Failed to Lower the Figures---Increasing Independence of Women Cited as One Cause, Inability of Young Men to Earn Enough Another---Unemployment Fails to Check Number

By MARTHA COMAN.

The average man throws in his lot with the benefits soon after he has turned 30. The average woman escapes spinsterhood to-day at the age of nearly 26. In other words, newly-wedded couples are not as young as they used to be. The age at which men and women stand before a representative of the church or the city clerk and promise to take each other "for better, for worse" and abide by the consequences has advanced.

Official figures that go back to the time when the city started to keep a record of the age of every man and every woman applying for a marriage license show that the age of betrothed and under-betrothed has advanced by regular steps.

To ascertain the average age at which a man and a woman marry, official statistics not providing this information, the records of the Marriage License Bureau, in the City of Greater New York, for the first date of which is January, 1908, were carefully examined. The ages of 300 men and the 300 women to whom they were joined in matrimony were taken, and from these figures an average was struck. This average, representing the marrying age thirteen years ago, is 27 1-5 years for the men and 22 4-5 for the women.

Figures taken from the official records for January, 1911, ten years ago, show a decided advance in the average. As in the first instance, the ages of 300 men and the 300 women to whom they were married were used in arriving at the average, which is 28 1-2 for men and 24 1-4 for women.

Average Age Continues to Advance
Even in Period of Military Draft

Between 1911 and the present year came the draft, which gave an added incentive to marrying. The figures from the official books for the two most important periods of the draft, August, 1917, when the first Governmental selection of men to bear arms in the world war was made, and in January, 1918, when the second call came, are interesting. They do not reduce the average, as one might expect from the great number of boys, of nineteen, twenty and twenty-two who married in those periods. On the contrary, they show that the age of betrothed and spinsterhood continued to advance, though it slowed down considerably. The number of young girls and young men married then was offset, so far as the average is concerned, by an unusual group of applicants in the fifties or sixties.

There is no accounting for this. Even the City Clerk himself had no explanation although he finally suggested that a man just sixty married a woman near his own age—and sometimes she was a year or two older—to provide for her future in case anything serious happened to him during the war.

The actual average is 28 years for the men and 24 1-4 for the women who married in January, 1918, and 28 1-2 for the men and 25 1-4 for the women who married in January, 1918.

Average Age in Present Year Is
30 1-3 for Men and 25 3-4 for Women

The average age of 300 men who were married in January, 1921, is 30 1-3 years and of the women they married is 25 3-4.

Since 1908, the year for which first official figures were obtainable, to 1921 the marrying age has advanced for the men from 27 1-5 to 30 1-3 and for the women from 22 4-5 to 25 3-4.

In thirteen years the marrying age for men has advanced 3 1-5 years and for women 2 5-8 years. In ten years it has advanced 1 1-2 years for men and 1 1-4 years for women.

There were 75,510 marriage licenses issued in the five boroughs last year. Of these 43,324 were issued in Manhattan. The number in Brooklyn was about half that. The number of matrimonial knots tied by the City Clerk in 1920 was 21,902 for the five boroughs. Manhattan Borough's clerk performed 15,436 of these civil ceremonies.

Chief Clerk Edward W. Hart of the Marriage License Bureau said that the average number of marriage licenses issued in January last year, which broke the record, except during the draft, was almost 300 a day. The general average for a busy day is 300.

In one day's records examined there were 156 bridegrooms under 30 and fifty-eight over 30. One hundred and twenty-three brides were under 25 and ninety-one were 25 or over.

Of 200 bridegrooms that applied for licenses in August, 1918, during the second draft, 216 were 30 or under, and of the 216 brides 232 were 25 or under. Thirty-one of the bridegrooms were from 19 to 21 and seventy-one of the brides were under 20. Compare this number of early marriages with those of ten years before the draft. As against the seventy-one brides of 20 or under in 1918 there were eighty-six of the same age in 1908. Also in this list there was one bride of 16, there were three of 17 and five of 18 years of age. There were twenty bridegrooms from 19 to 21 years of age in 1908.

During the draft there were seven bridegrooms over 30, one of them 66, and there was one bride of 69, while there were two of 62 years of age and two others in the fifties.

If the average age of the bridegroom has advanced by three and two-fifths years and of the bride by nearly three years in the last thirteen years, how is this to be accounted for? The advance, as the records show, has been steady. It has not jumped higher some years and then fallen below in other years. One must believe from these figures that men and women are postponing marriage more and more. What is the explanation?

Representative persons were asked to express their views on an indisputable fact as presented by the official figures. Michael J. Cruise, acting City Clerk and First Deputy, who may be considered at present the greatest marrying person in the country, confessed that he could not account for the delay in approaching the matrimonial altar. Mr. Cruise paused for breath during one of his busiest spinning days and glanced over the table of averages prepared from the city's records.

"From my observation of the couples who come here to be married," said Mr. Cruise, "I should say that the majority of the men are about 21 and about 35 and the girls about 20 and 29." "There seem to be fewer men between those ages getting married these days. Maybe they want to get a little bit of life before they tie up."

"The girls are very young, taking them as a whole. We have many number of them 18, 19 and 20. But then you must remember that a woman sometimes cheats a little about her age. I don't want to flatter myself, but I feel that I am pretty good at guessing ages."

"Yesterday we had a 'girl' of 66 who married a man of 65. That's unusual, of course, and I can see how such a case would run the average up a good deal. But if you were here a few days you would think that even so many more girls of 18 or 20 were marrying young men of 21 or 22 than of any other age. We do have numbers of men of 25 marrying women of 20 or over."

"The acting City Clerk said that he did not think unemployment had anything to do with not marrying, because this year, in which thousands of men and women have been out of work, has started off as a banner marrying year."

Before hastening back to a room full of waiting brides and bridegrooms the First Deputy gave some interesting figures from his department. It takes about two minutes to perform the service in the little chapel on the floor above the Marriage License Bureau. About one-third of the marriages for which applications for certificates are made are performed in the city's chapel. Fridays and the thirteenth of the month are comparatively dull days for this ceremony. A big day brings seventy couples to the altar and the average day about fifty. Sometimes, when there is a specially large crowd of anxious bridegrooms and brides waiting in the anteroom and the morning has been a strain on Mr. Cruise's voice, he sends an S. O. S. to the Brooklyn Deputy or the Richmond Borough Deputy and gives his vocal cords a little rest while one of these marrying neighbors conducts the solemn rites.

Each Day Has Its Own
Classification of Couples

On Mondays from 25 to 30 per cent. of the applicants for licenses are from out of town, many of them coming from Pennsylvania, Mr. Cruise said. He calls it his traveling day. Tuesday the New York men and women predominate, and Wednesday is the favorite day for young couples. Thursday is bride's day at the bridal altar, and Friday, which is considered unlucky by white brides, is, strangely enough, not looked upon with superstition by the negroes, who come to have the knot tied by the city official. Saturday, which is a half day in this chapel, is unusually busy. Mr. Cruise calls it a cosmopolitan day, as it seems to have no special characteristics as to nationality.

All kinds and conditions apply for certificates and then go up stairs, where the acting City Clerk presides, to get the ceremony over civilly, and afterward perhaps have the marriage performed by a priest or pastor.

Magistrate Jean Norris, who is alternating between the Women's Court in Jefferson Market and the Domestic Relations Court in West Fifty-seventh street, advanced the opinion that men and women were marrying at an older age now because women have become economically independent.

Sees No Necessity These Days
For Marrying to Get a Home

"I have not given the subject any careful thought," said Miss Norris, who was seen after court had adjourned. She still wore her judicial gown and was seated in the Judge's private office adjoining the Women's Court's clerk. "It is no longer important or even necessary for women to marry for a home. Financially every woman can be self-supporting these days. Many who are the daughters of wealthy parents earn their living. This has made a tremendous difference to women. I should say that the average age at which men and women marry has advanced in a ratio with the increasing number of women who have become economically independent."

"This economic independence of women reacts on the men. They delay marrying because they cannot get the women they want at an earlier age or because they like to see life before settling down. This arrangement keeps the relative age about the same, I should say. Women who wait until they are 25 to marry naturally marry men comparatively near their own age. As it happens, this age is about 30, according to the figures.

"Since I have been at the Domestic Relations Court I have seen the greatest display of bitterness, particularly by the younger

Chasing Rum-Runners Along the Canadian Border

Slowly it began turning over. Our car did not respond to the brakes, as the outlaw's had, and we rammed the already capsizeing prize. The bootlegger jumped for it, took to the middle of the road and stuck his hands in the air.

There was a crash and a grinding. A magnificent aroma pervaded the atmosphere. "Well," soliloquized the Sheriff as he surveyed the bootlegger, "all it cost you was a $5,000 car and forty cases of hooch, which must have stood you $1,000 in Canada. Pretty soft for you, kid."

"I should worry," returned the outlaw. "It wasn't my car and not my sixteen hundred. The guy puttin' up for that cargo ain't broke yet. What are you goin' to do with me?"

"Oh, you'll get a hearing before the Commissioner," interrupted the customs man. "That means $1,000 bond, and you'll be fined a couple of hundred in court later on."

"We'll make a night of it by lookin' over Oscar Brown's place at Owl's Head," suggested the other customs man.

So back to Malone and on for six miles to Owl's Head. It was breaking day, and there was activity around Oscar's house.

We tried the barn first.

"What d'ye want?" shrieked an old chap, who was raking straw with a pitchfork.

"Where's Oscar?"

"Ded, I expect. What d'ye want, anyhow?"

"Got any booze around, Pap?"

"Booze? My, my, no indeed. I'm a Holy Roller."

"A what?" demanded the customs man.

"Holy Roller. Holy Roller. We don't care nothing about booze. Can't feed cows booze and get milk."

Searching Oscar's Barn
Proves a Fruitful Task

We dug Oscar out of bed and with him searched the barn. Pretty soon we discovered twelve cases of suspicious looking stuff labelled rye whiskey. And later on we came upon a trunk in which there were twelve bottles of good Dewar's Scotch.

"Why didn't you tell us it was here?" demanded the customs man of the old Holy Roller.

"Nobody ever told me nothing! I didn't have to work to get it," was the sage reply.

"Where did you get this good Scotch?"

The patriarch cocked his head, closed his left eye and delivered himself of the following wisdom:

"Say, did you ever try gettin' what you go after?"

And that was one night on the border.

There's no telling what may happen after May 1. On that date the Canadian Government takes over the business of distribution of intoxicants. But one bottle may be sold legally to any one person in a day. The case lots business will be outlawed. But we shall see. They're working miracles along the border.

There's no news in the statement that booze is gushing into the United States from Canada all along the border. This story has to do with the New York border and particularly that part of the border stretching from Fort Covington to Rouses Point.

From Fort Covington west, that section of the boundary being the St. Lawrence River, there is less fishing in because it is more difficult, more dangerous and slower to smuggle the stuff across water.

As has been said, there are about fifty roads over which whiskey is smuggled between Rouses Point and Fort Covington. The Government officials admit it. The Franklin and Clinton county officials admit it. Everybody who cares a little bit for truth admits it and in loud unison they demand:

"What of it? How are you going to stop it?"

It is about seventy miles from Rouses Point to Fort Covington. Along that far flung bottle line the United States Government maintains about thirty customs officers. They admit that about one rum runner in a hundred is captured at or within twenty-five miles south of the border.

And it is their guess that the successful ninety-nine are not molested south of that twenty-five mile line. Volstead agents have come and gone—one as suddenly as the other. Two weeks ago three, assigned to the Malone sector, were dismissed from the service after brief sojourn.

An entirely new brand of outlaw has arisen. The writer was assured by county and Federal agents that the situation is worse to-day than it has been, and that it is growing worse. You arrive in the north country to be regaled with stories that you scoff at. It can't be true? It sounds like the cheap movie serial. It is exaggerated. Town boosters and resort hotel proprietors bewail the sensational stories emanating from the border country. It's bad business. Tourists will be frightened away. Briefly they are anxious to throttle the truth for the truth of the matter is that the booze smuggling business has developed into one of the most desperate and vicious traffics the East has seen.

There are police records of stories that sound like ravings.

There's the man who two years ago was a railroad station roustabout earning a bare livelihood driving a broken down Ford to the village hotel. He had but one suit of clothing, and that a pair of overalls. In winter he lived by snow shovelling and furnace tending. Three months ago he offered $150,000 cash for a Lake George hotel. He drives his own Cadillac to-day.

One of the St. Regis Indians was arrested for running hooch from Moores Forks to Lake Placid—from depot to depot.

"How did you get in this business?" he was asked.

"Me?" he replied. "Oh, me, I buy a bottle of whiskey for $3 and sell him for $7. Then I buy me two bottles and sell him for double. Pretty quick I have a Ford and I make money pretty fast."

There are a dozen instances of holdups of tourists. It used to be that the highwaymen posed as Volsteaders or State police. They have passed the stage of dissembling now. One instance will illustrate the whole.

Bandits Block the Roads
To Prey on Rum-Runners

A man was driving to Montreal in a big car—the size and type desired for bootlegging. With him was his daughter. Just above Plattsburg late in the afternoon two armed men held up the father and daughter and told them to dismount. They took what money the father had—a matter of $400—took his name and told him he'd hear from them later. He did. A week later the car was located in Buffalo, almost wrecked and abandoned. Several broken bottles in the luggage carrier told the story.

It had been used for bootlegging. It had carried its consignment across the border. It was too risky to keep the car in service. The bandits went out for another.

And maybe they got it.

Bandits have found it profitable to block the road and wait for rum-runners coming south. The rum-runner is dragged off his seat and the holdup men do the rest of the running. It is all clear profit for them. Neither the car nor the booze costs them anything.

All this has bred the gun toting rum-runner and the combinations of smugglers who enjoy independent profits but who have banded together for protection against their less daring and more despicable brothers in outlawry.

Of Volstead men the stories are multitudinous. The chances are that many are quite true.

From a Government official the writer learned the following tale, and this one is altogether typical of the run of them.

Into the Elks home in a border town came a prosperous looking citizen who displayed his tooth insignia and his membership card.

"Am in town for two or three days," he explained to a brother Elks. "Could I get a drink?"

"A brother can, I guess," was the reply, and the stranger received and drank his drink.

Having downed the stuff, he pulled back his coat and displayed a Volstead badge.

"Now what do you think of that?" he sneered.

What his host thought and put into words is not to be set down here. He left the stranger in no doubts and was thinking of new ones when the stranger interrupted:

"Oh, sit tight. It's all right. How'd you like to buy a case, or say two cases? I have only two cases left, and you're welcome to them at $100 a case. What do you say to that?"

There was nothing to say except "res," and the trapped man said it. He had to buy it. He bought it.

Two nights after the raid on the Mary Reilly road and its sequel on Bare Hill we went over into Canada to run the road with Wilson, McMillan, McCaffrey and Bill McNaughton.

The situation is different in Canada. The roads are bad and there are more customs men along the border. Montreal is the great center of the liquor traffic. There are about 150 licensed dispensers of booze in that town, and there are two good highways running into it from the States. For that reason the triangle of land lying between the American border and the St. Lawrence River, especially that section thereof lying west of the Canadian reach of Lake Champlain and the Richelieu River, is so much with relay stations. Booze is dispensed there and made in those stations. In almost all instances they are farms.

The two runs great risk of not getting what he goes after. You drive your car to the designated farm. The barn door is opened. In you go. You are invited to the house to partake of a sample slug and have a bite to eat. When you return to the barn your car is packed with the required number of bottles or cases. The gasoline tank has been filled and you're oil supply replenished. You are fit for the long drive. It's a little short of 450 miles from Fort Covington or Chateaugay, N. Y., to Manhattan. You can get your load of booze ten miles inside Canada or even less.

Anyway you have paid $40 a case for a medium brand of youthful Scotch or $60 for honest stuff (stuff that is becoming rarer and rarer by the way). You are just as likely as not to arrive in the States with a cargo of synthetic stuff so freshly labelled that the paste thereon is not yet dry. If you know the game they do not attempt fraud, or if you are a member of a certain ring or clique you are treated fairly. However, the Canadian farmer is not any more angelic than his American brother. It's a safe game. The hunched one has no comeback. There's no one upon whose official shoulder he may weep.

We met in Wilson's offices in the Canadian customs office north of Trout River. McMillan was nursing a bruised fist.

"You're late," grinned Wilson. "McMillan here's just after administering a grand beating to a State policeman. Yep, a New York State policeman. At any rate he wore the badge of one—both of them did. Yes, there were two. You tell 'em Mac."

But McMillan declined. He's a whale of a man, about 60 years old. Every so often he fares forth into the habitat of the toughest citizen in his bailiwick and does out to that citizen a tremendous walloping. The moral effect is wonderful. Thereafter nobody seeks to take advantage of old Mac's soaring years. He holds forth officially at Dundee, Quebec, just across the border from Fort Covington.

"Have it your own way, then," went on Wilson. "McNaughton and McMillan there were out having a look at Napoleon Bastian's farm when along comes a big fellow, almost every day looking for a job who tells me that he has had to postpone his wedding until he gets work," said Mr. Jacobs. "One this morning, a man who had been overseas—I think he couldn't have been more than twenty-five—told me that he had intended to get married next week but that it was all off now. That man will get a job, but it will take him some time to save up his money for the wedding, and in the meantime the girl may not want to wait for him and will marry some one else."

"It is heartbreaking to see such numbers of men who were in the service now looking for work. We have them from colonels down to privates. Last week we placed a Colonel who was overseas in a good job and we have found openings for majors."

The Ex-Service Men's Employment Bureau, Inc., makes no charge either to the applicant for the job or to the person or firm desiring an employee. Its offices are donated by a friend and even the telephone service is paid for by contributions. The organization is supported entirely by voluntary offerings. It has the endorsement of the American Legion, and other ex-service men's organizations, yet it is not directed in the slightest way by any of these.

The type of man who goes there looking for a job is far above the average. Many of them wore their service raincoats, and all looked neat and clean. Their average age is about 28, Mr. Jacobs said, and many are married. Some of these married men are actually destitute. They are in immediate need of clothing, food or medical attention for themselves or their families, and some interested and kindly fellows of the bureau takes it upon himself or herself to see that enough is supplied to tide over the individual or the family.

"If economic conditions do not improve well have the marrying age moving further and further along," remarked Mr. Jacobs. "Seeing these needy married men in here would discourage any single man from taking a wife until he has something ahead and a job that he thinks is sure. Lack of jobs is certainly a bar to marriage. You can quote me as saying that it's the biggest one just now."

"We set forth for Napoleon Bastian's farm in two cars. We had not gone more than a mile when we came abreast of a fine black colt hitched to a light buggy. An enormous man filled the vehicle. It was close to 10 o'clock and the night was black.

"Ain't you afraid bein' on the road with the little mare when the speed boys are tearin' up and down?" yelled Wilson.

"No," replied the horseman. "I'm driving across toward Kensington, where I live. Just bought the colt."

McMillan Sees Something
Queer in the Proceedings

"There's something damned queer about that," grunted McMillan when the sound of the colt's hoofs had died away. "Queer time of night to be drivin' a colt—a new one at that. We'll run over Kensington way after calling on Napoleon."

Napoleon asserted that he was ver' glad to see Meester Volstead, but his eyes didn't match his tongue.

"Nice car you had out in the road this morning, Napoleon," said Wilson.

"It belong to my son-in-law," explained Napoleon.

"Almost as nice as those two I noticed there day before yesterday," pursued Wilson.

"Qui; they too are those of the husbands of my other daughters."

"Fine, fine; the girls married well, didn't they?"

"But they are beautiful girls," explained Napoleon with a bow.

"Where's madame going?" demanded McMillan, suddenly observing that ample lady waddling toward the barn via the back path.

"Who can tell?" shrugged Napoleon. "She is a woman of moods."

"Well, we shall have a look," decided Wilson.

Wilson yanked the barn door open, and Madame, having taken care to provide herself with a heavy wagon spoke, took a healthy whack at the official's head. Wilson wanted it off with his arm. Napoleon leaped to his wife.

"You fool," he snarled at the enraged lady, and she snatched the spoke.

In the wagon space stood a big Cadillac touring car. In the front seat, heavily sleeping, lay the husband of one of the beautiful daughters. Packed into the car were 480 quarts of whiskey, proclaiming itself by label to be the best product of the Dawson distilleries.

And stored in Napoleon Bastian's hay mows, long since bereft of hay, were 240 cases of various whiskeys—2,880 quarts!

We turned toward Kensington, after telephoning to five points along the border to be on the lookout for two big Stutz cars that had passed us like demons—no lights burning and horns squawking like scared things.

Near La Farge's Corners we located the black colt and its owner. The latter was

LOOKS TO STAGE TO MEND PRESENT DAY MORALS

Miss Rachel Crothers, Who Wrote 'Nice People,' a Play Portraying the Younger Generation, Is Confident Modern Girls Will See the Folly of Extravagant Dress, Too Much Freedom and Aimless Existence

NEW YORK, Saturday. DECADENCE in modern morals and manners, discussed week by week in the columns of prominent newspapers by important men and women, is the subject matter of a current play, "Nice People," the author of which, Miss Rachel Crothers, to-day tells how she was led to write it by her observation of this trait in modern society.

In this playwright's work from her first piece, "The Three of Us," played in New York in 1905, and including more recent successful plays, "The Little Journey" and "39 East," a serious vein is apparent. Her talk about the manners of the younger generation is a valuable contribution.

"How did I come to write the play 'Nice People'? If I had not written it somebody else would; it was in the air; everybody was talking of the things that make the substance of the play—the commonness of the current manners of young women and men; the lack of a moral tone—not merely a high moral tone, but a decent one—and the subject simply had to be put on the stage. Is that a sufficient reason?"

Miss Rachel Crothers, who explained herself and the present social conditions, that to many persons seem to reflect decadence of morals and manners, in the above words, was far from Broadway as she uttered them. Safe from the insinuating cocktail, the prevailing smoke of cigarettes, far out of hearing of jazz, in a pretty summer home that she has remodelled from a farmhouse more than one hundred years old in the Berkshire foothills, the dramatist was in a situation and in a mood to philosophize on life and to draw a moral from it, as she has done to some purpose in "Nice People."

"The effect of this stage piece," said she, "is another proof of the wonderful, the all powerful work of the theatre. I always marvelled at it, from the way it influenced me, and the older I grow in knowledge of the world (I hope) as in years, I wonder more and more.

"Do people realize what the stage can do? It can preach a sermon that people who have forgotten the way to churches stop and listen to. A transcendent power—yet we waste it, we fritter it away!

"Don't imagine that this kind of moralizing piece reached the footlights without some obstacles having to be overcome. There were the gravest doubts felt that its message was so openly revealed as to offend people and strangle the play before it was fairly born. I never feared this unhappy fate for it, but, as you know, the author of a play is not the only person who has to be considered—there are managers and critics and all sorts of people of little faith.

"But the facts have been these: Parents have gone to see this piece and after the performance have said: 'That girl (the heroine) talked exactly as our own daughter does—she used her very words.' Young men have taken their sweethearts to see it and turned to say at the close of the first act: 'The scene might be in your own home. Why, the people are ourselves!'

Happy Ending Is Criticized As Due to Box Office Orders

"There have been criticisms to the effect that the author in the first act took an exaggerated condition of things and then, to suit the exigency of the box office, compelled a happy ending. I don't want to talk of the play any further than to use it as a theme for what you ask of me, my opinion of present day manners and morals and what they lead to, but in justice to the piece I do want to say this: The first act is a bit of life in New York itself; it is realism with a vengeance. The heart of the play is in it, and it couldn't have gone on to a finish unless that first act were true."

Miss Crothers then asserted that her pessimistic critics were wrong in finding, as they thought they found, a "box office" ending in the piece.

"I am optimistic about the future of the young people whose manners nevertheless shock me. And I believe the present conditions are bound to change and that girls like Teddy will come to their senses, see themselves as they are and correct their faults of taste.

"For, classify all the things, all the influences, that make men and women of having conversation with a farmer in a general store.

"Decided not to go right home, hey?" started Wilson.

"I am trying to sell the colt," explained the fat man.

"Tell us about yourself."

"It's none of your damned business," growled the big fellow.

"Maybe, maybe," mused Wilson, "but you better keep straight because we're looking at you for a week or so."

So we left, still certain that there was something queer about it.

"We'll get that whole outfit one of these nights," said one of the Canadian officials. There was a dance in progress in a hall at Huntington. It was quite an affair.

The orchestra was entirely overwhelmed by hootch and a girl was wangling the big drum with an empty bottle. An American tried to drive a Ford into the place and we decided to run along before the ensuing fight reached the bottle throwing stage.

"That's for the police to settle," said Wilson.

The return trip was uneventful until we reached a cross road within a mile of Wilson's station north of Trout River. At the side of the road stood a long, two seated car, in which a girl sat peering into the engine was a man.

"What's the matter?" demanded McMillan.

Francine Larrimore as Teddy in "Nice People." At right, Miss Rachel Crothers, who says her play will help mend modern morals.

style of dress. They do this no longer. They come to New York. Any fashion must have the New York trade mark.

"I draw an illustration from my own home town. Years ago, in the generation before mine, a saving, industrious man and his wife bought some acres in the corn belt of Illinois. He added to them and added to them and died a multi-millionaire, leaving nine sons. Eight of the boys had been sent to Eastern colleges; one, the eldest, stayed at home to help his father.

"The family wealth was equally divided and that generation lived comfortably, even luxuriously, until the automobile generation arrived. Then the grandchildren of the founder of the family married in turn and turned their attention to New York. They spent their money in New York; they wore New York clothes, and among other customs, good and bad, which this third generation adopted was the divorce habit. They took it badly. Divorces have divided the family into almost endless divisions, and the great fortune, once considered a total, has been lost or cut up into insignificant portions. In this family the New York example has worked havoc.

"All this will be changed, I think, without New York losing its pre-eminence, by the oncoming generation learning to beware what they do, since evil associations here corrupt so widely."

"Part of the lesson these clear eyed girls of ours, who have craved to know life at too early an age, will learn, will be to grow less self-conscious—to think less of their clothes, less of what kind of impression they are making, and more on how or by what traits of character they are making it. They need the shock that Teddy gets in the play to point this new way to live, but—don't worry—they will get it.

"The boys will teach them. After all is said, the young men are much more satisfactory. They already see that the way we live now is not real living; they are becoming serious, and this will carry over to the girls.

"Why, already one hears the young men attributing a good many things that they don't like to the way women behave. They say that women's lack of restraint in the use of tobacco, for instance, is what is giving power to the anti-cigarette league. I have no opinion to give about that. I do not believe that women had much to do with prohibition, but I advance this sort of undercurrent resentment as another thing that will have weight with women. The world has not changed; women still court popularity with the starker sex—it still is the breath in their nostrils."

"The playwright was gently but firmly invited to return to the argument of 'Nice People' from those excursions far afield. She promised to do so provided she could first report what she had heard a woman 75 years old say at a fashionable wedding.

"Some people were inveighing, as usual, against the very open faults of our girls, and this wise old lady said:

"Dear friends, what the girls of to-day are doing—that is, moving fearlessly and equally among men—is exactly what we wanted to do in our young days and—didn't dare to!"

Story of the Play Simple, But Carries Lesson Well

Then Miss Crothers told the story of her play, which is, in truth, very simple. Its heroine, a motherless girl, spoiled by the overindulgence of her father, when the latter seeks to curb her at once goes further in the road of audacity than she had ever intended.

This heroine, Teddy for short, is painfully disillusioned by the discovery she makes that one of her suitors, for whom she thought she cared, values her by a money standard and with utter selfishness.

"The pair, in one of their wild 'joy' rides by night, are driven to find shelter in a lonely house. There the self-seeking suitor discloses himself and when she resists him he taunts her with the lie that she has lost her reputation unless she marries him.

But the storm blows in another type of modern young man. He believes in Teddy's purity without proof or witnesses, and her gratitude is not long in turning to a warmer feeling. The play ends in a perfectly reasonable expectation of happiness for both.

"For, you see," said Miss Crothers, "Teddy had intelligence. So have our younger generation. They will cast off the present day hampering fashions because they are clever enough to know they hamper. They will make good wives, fine housekeepers, sensible mothers, because they are intelligent."

The essence of this chat, with its illustrative anecdotes, is to be found in the play. Its crux lies in the first act, the atmospheric act, as the playwright called it, picturing only reality. As its more dramatic scenes follow, the reader may judge for himself whether or not the author has used the right adjectives to describe it.

Part of the Dramatic Opening Of the Play, 'Nice People'

The play opens Theodora (Teddy) Gloucester is giving a little dance in her father's apartment on Park avenue, and to her aunt, Margaret Rainsford, who has come (she thinks) to chaperon the girl, Theodora presents her guests when she thinks of it. To describe Mrs. Rainsford's dress is to describe her: a black evening gown at once modish and conservative, with an exclusiveness which lifts it above mere smartness. The manner of the young people shock her, but she preserves her sang froid until toward midnight a plan of running uptown to a dance hall is proposed. The tolerant father lends his daughter his car and one of the young men asks as a matter of form:

Are you coming with us, Mrs. Rainsford?

Mrs. Rainsford: Thank you, no, unless you need me. Who is going to chaperon you?

Teddy (laughs): Chaperon? Heavens, Aunt Margaret, we're not babies. I haven't been any place with a chaperon for a million years.

Mrs. Rainsford: You're twenty, I believe.

The young people banter one another in rather a coarse way, and as they are starting Teddy suddenly remembers that she is without money and she "touches" her father, explaining that this is her party. Mr. Gloucester:

fer hunts through his pockets and produces $80 and the gay party sets forth, with Teddy calling back:

"If anybody telephones tell them we're—no, I don't know where we'll be. I'll be home early in the morning."

Mrs. Rainsford and the father are left to talk Teddy over. The aunt finds what she has seen and heard "simply appalling." Mr. Gloucester soothes her, saying: "Why, these are the nicest kind of young people. Smart families, every one of them."

Mrs. Rainsford: That's just it. That's what makes it so horrible. If they were common little upstarts and parvenus it would be easy enough to understand. But nice people. What are their parents thinking of? Can't they see what it is going to do to the future generations?

Gloucester: Why Margaret—there never was a generation that grew up that didn't think the next one coming on was going to do better. They're freer—yes—because they are younger. I believe they are actually safer than the bottled up age I went through—when we had to sneak about all the devilry we did. They're perfectly open and above board about it; you'll have to admit that.

But the aunt reviews what she (and the audience) have seen, girls smoking cigarettes, drinking cocktails, and cries out: "What are their parents thinking of? Can't they see what it is going to do to the future generations?"

She alludes to the memory of her dead sister, Teddy's mother, exclaiming: "How she would have hated it! She wouldn't let you give that child $50 to throw away in an evening. She wouldn't have let her go about half naked!"

And she adds: "The emptiness, the soullessness of it all. I've been here three days and I haven't heard her or any of her friends say a single word or express a thought about anything on earth but their clothes and their motors and themselves. They all talk alike, think alike, dress alike, and the driver says: 'Your house is a bar!'"

The father insists that he is doing all he can to make his daughter happy. "She's all right," says he, "she's a nice girl and she's perfectly capable of taking care of herself."

Mrs. Rainsford: She isn't! She isn't! She's only a child. She's surrounded by everything that can hurt her and by nothing that can help her. It's all chaos and waste and degeneracy.

CURB ON STRIKES IS PLANNED

Adjustment Boards Urged by A. F. of L. Council.

WOULD REGULATE WAGES

Building Conditions Thruout Country Reported Bad.

CINCINNATI — Establishment of local wage conference or adjustment boards thruout the country to prevent unnecessary strikes and lock-outs in the building industry was urged here by the executive council of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, in session here.

Under the proposed plan announced by John Donlin, president of the building trades department, "arbitration of wage disputes is provided and sympathetic strikes in behalf of unions making unjustified demands" are prevented.

It has already been successfully tried out in several cities, including Cincinnati, he said. "The new movement," he added, will give stability to business and inspire confidence in the building and investment public.

PROPOSED BOARDS
The proposed boards will be composed of representatives of the building contractors and the various unions. Wage scales for the various crafts will be established on an equitable basis, according to the merits of the trade. There will be no uniform scale. The board shall consider the question of advances or decreases in wages as general living conditions will permit.

Reports received by the council, President Donlin said, showed that building conditions thruout the country are "very bad," but there is some slight improvement.

"New York City is the only big center in the country that is experiencing a building boom," he declared. "Our men are all working there and voluntary increases in wages are being paid by the employers in order to get workers."

WORKING ON REPORT
"Wage reductions will not solve the building depression situation. The people are not building and will not build at the present time. They apparently are satisfied with buying luxuries—not homes."

The executive council of the American Federation held a brief session today working on its report to the annual convention of the Federation.

This report, it was learned, will include a recommendation for a general application of the initiative and referendum in the political affairs of the United States and our several states.

Word was received by the council that J. H. Thomas, head of the railway workers union in England, will come to the United States soon, and will address the federation's convention in Denver in June.

The council this afternoon participated in the All-American Day celebration.

VIOLENCE BREAKS IN SHIP STRIKE

Clashes Occur at Water Front in Brooklyn.

THREE PERSONS ARRESTED

Seamen to Hold Mass Meeting This Afternoon.

NEW YORK — The strike of marine workers continued here Saturday with violence threatening along the water front.

Three arrests were made Saturday in Brooklyn where pier workers said they were incited by striking firemen. Police said the prisoners were armed with clubs. To guard against repetitions of interference with ship workers, police guards were increased and shipping companies put more watchmen on duty.

SHIP'S SAIL
Shipping was hampered but a number of vessels left port Saturday on schedule. Strikers protested that the owners were filling their places with Orientals. Investigation showed the reports groundless, although a number of Filipinos were taken aboard several ships.

Leaving New York Saturday were the Montez, Mexico, Uta, Lafayette, Leland, Jordan and several smaller vessels. All had full crews and none reported last minute difficulties in getting away.

Strikers will hold a mass meeting here Sunday afternoon to vote on what appears to be the sole remaining point of difference between them and the American Steamship Owners.

FINAL OFFER
The meeting was called after a communication had been received at headquarters of the International Seamen's Union, from Thomas R. Heath, one of their representatives in Washington, transmitting what he described as the final offer of the owners a solicitation and the United States Shipping Board.

The telegram said that six of the seven points offered had been accepted by the union delegates. The seventh was said to be: Establishment of a bonus plan in connection with the proposed 15 percent wage reduction.

As the answer to all the propositions was said to have been promised by 10 o'clock Monday morning, Sunday's mass meeting was called immediately. The other six points said to have been accepted by the union, were: Reinstatement of all strikers; retention of the basic eight-hour day; overtime to be paid pro-rata on the basis of the eight hour day; retention of the 1920 ship tonnage classification; one hour overtime daily for the most efficient engineers; elimination of the proposed "open shop" principle.

Flowers and Mothers' Day are inseparably linked together and florists in Lima stated Saturday that the day will be more generally observed this year than ever before in the history of the city. Before 4 p. m., Saturday their stocks of cut flowers and potted plants were practically sold out.

While there is no generally recognized flower for Mother's Day, it is the accepted custom to purchase pink flowers for the living and white in memory of those who have passed into the great beyond.

Hundreds of Lima mothers were honored by their loved ones by observance of this beautiful custom. Special programs in observance of the occasion will be held in various churches and among many other organizations today.

BRITAIN MAY AID GERMANY

WOULD DISARM POLAND

Insurgent Forces Gaining in Disputed District.

LONDON — Premier Lloyd George, addressing a Unionist mass meeting at Maidstone Saturday, intimated that allied intervention in the Upper Silesia situation hinged upon Germany's acceptance of the reparations ultimatum.

"I hope Germany will be wise and accept the moderate terms," he said. "If Germany disarms, in accordance with the treaty, she will be able to ask the allies to compel Poland to observe the treaty in like manner."

The premier imposed the necessity of the country in continuing to operate, saying:

PROBLEMS TO SOLVE
"There are still difficulties to solve. For instance the coal strike, Germany, Ireland, Austria, Asia Minor."

Regarding Ireland, Lloyd George expressed delight that leaders of the opposing factions had conferred. He spoke of this as "a good sign" tho he pointed out that "the result cannot be predicted."

Congratulating the country on the absence of disorders in the strike he said:

"The coal industry must be self-supporting, the same as other industries. The miners must accept their share of depression due to American and other competition."

The premier declared that "the country means to do its duty" and urged the country to "endure."

GERMANY WAITING
BERLIN — While Germany was awaiting the allies reply to her offer to furnish troops to restore order in Upper Silesia, additional reports were received Saturday that a Czech-Slovak force had crossed the frontier and entered the disputed district.

While the object of this invasion was not definitely known, it was assumed that Czech-Slovakia hoped to take advantage of the chaos to press her claims for a portion of a coal lands.

The latest advices indicated that the Polish insurgents, numbering probably 100,000, were continuing their advance and were rapidly overrunning the entire district, the French falling back before them and the Italians, too weak numerically to offer serious resistance.

At least 70 Italian soldiers were reported to have been killed in clashes with Commissioner Korfante's forces.

In allied circles here Saturday night the belief was expressed that the German proffer of armed aid would be refused by the allies.

Prosecutor Lippincott states, as an undesirable alien. At the time he was convicted and sentenced to the Ohio State penitentiary at Columbus, federal authorities were led up with other matters, but they now have the time to act.

James Corrio, another Lima Italian sentenced to prison for carrying weapons, may be brought up for deportation along with Tarabina. He has never taken out naturalization papers and has a police record. He was recently tried and convicted by a jury before Judge Fred C. Becker, who sentenced him to the penitentiary.

Happy Homes!

"We want an America of homes, illumined with hope and happiness, where mothers, freed from the necessity for long hours of toil beyond their own doors, may preside as befits the hearthstone of American citizenship. We want the cradle of American childhood rocked under conditions so wholesome and so hopeful that no blight may touch it in its development, and we want to provide that no selfish interest, no material necessity, no lack of opportunity shall prevent the gaining of that education so essential to best citizenship."—From President Harding's Inaugural Speech.

OHIO LEARNS DAY BY DAY

Review of Things Political From Capitol

court blanket control of its own budget and declaring itself free from all provisions of the budget law as applied to other departments. But whether the co-ordination was confined to the lawmakers or whether it also embraced the Governor, is something which only Providence in its wisdom may know. This information is not for mere mortals. There are those who say that the Governor was as much of a co-ordinator as any one else and there are others who say that he never co-operated at all in this epoch making decision of the lawmakers. They told it both ways on the floor when they were going to vote and they told it so well that there was not even a flurry in the House of Representatives, like there was in the Ohio Senate when the steam roller was run over poor old Bill Miller and he was made to eat his words in the presence of the large and determined lobby of Judges. Never again will Senator Miller refer to the new justices as "low-down lobbyists." They might have laughed at the mere lobby charge but the "low-down" is a little bit like a serpent and stinketh like an adder. More than that, the Muskingsham Senator had to answer to the regular "candid" lobbyists who objected to his recognition of those who were not regularly enrolled and unionized.

As for "co-ordination," leave it to the Ohio Senate. They can do it better even than they can discover "emergencies" confronting the peaceful and well-disposed state of Ohio at this moment. In the wee small hours of last Sunday morning just when the folks were settling down into the refreshing sleep of the early morning hours and thinking how they were going to cheat the alarm clocks, these persons just danced a jig at their task. All they had to do was to confirm appointments of his Excellency, the Governor, but they turned it into a session at which they mocked at the head of a great co-ordinate department of government. And Hon. H. L. Davis was in his bed at that hour sleeping, no doubt the sleep of a great, good and just man. It was like making faces at an absent school teacher. Maybe there was some connection between that session and the decree on patronage which followed. Who shall say? And yet who would think it of the patient and true Mr. Davis, who is almost a saint, in meekness, forbearance and charity?

In every plot there must be a knave and Hon. W. W. Daugherty, the Jeffersonian chairman, seems to wish to fill that bill. Just when all this executive legislative judicial stew was on the stove and cooking up nicely, what does Bill do? He just brings the plain people into the equation. That's all, but it is plenty and he is as little thought of for doing it and so much abused as would be a society lady who would be a member of the chambermaids' union at a swell social function. But Bill persists. He had his squaw here this week, which is determined that the people shall have something to say about the ripper and he is asking the court to give him sanction for this decision. There was very little bitterness, but a lot of grimace about that meeting, take it from this old oracle. It was as if a former Auditor of State A. V. Donahy would "When the Constitution of our state is nullified in the interest of personal politics it is high time for all decent people of both parties to unite and act decisively." And that is just what they decided on doing and subservient politicians may be surprised to learn the number of men of both parties that will be in this affair up to their very eyes.

One thing may be said for Hon. Harry M. Daugherty, Attorney General of the United States. On May day, which was never an institution in this country in the same sense as it is in Europe, the Hon. Daugherty did not scare a lot of old ladies and a lot of men, who think just like old ladies, to death by many warnings about the "red" in a sort of report facta manner, which means that the event, he did come out with a long statement explaining why there were not armed guards everywhere to keep the people quiet. Really, something might be done to keep the politicians and the super-patrioters from their disturbing activity. They will have a lot of extra folks thinking there is a revolutionary party in the country which is numerically or mentally inferior. All sensible folks know better, of course. That reminds one of the act of Governor Harry L. Davis is calling out the Ohio National Guard to fight off a "raid of I. W. W.'s" at the Capitol. But why he did not let the corner cop give the rather one swift kick is more than anyone can figure. Just how you tell everyone he is a Bolshevik when you do not agree with him. And in some quarters that passes for profound reasoning.

The politicians in these parts have been excited, of course, by the story that Hon. H. M. Daugherty is to try again for the United States Senate. Well, he is welcome, thrice welcome. The national administration cannot use better means to test the popularity next year and as for Mr. Daugherty, it is pretty near now or never with him. The story about his candidacy probably explains the intimate attention he has been paying to Ohio. It is true that he comes home each week to spend a little time with his wife, but he often remains over for an extra day or two and there is much business of conferring, let us say, with William E. Halley, of Greenville, who is the guardian of the inner door for him. Mr. Daugherty is no wise suffered when it became known that he is a friend of the referendum and that as a party man he resists the encroachment of that institution doctrine through the numerous emergency clauses, particularly that on the "ripper" bill. If Governor Davis is finally hooked on that proposition it seems that he will be about as dead politically as a man can well be. They know that everywhere save in North-eastern Ohio, where the Governor still retains some popularity. This is in spite of his work against the workmen's compensation law and his desire to make good a campaign pledge to re-admit the private liability insurance company interests.

Members of the Ohio General Assembly are justly proud that it fell to their lot to be able to enact the Silver forestry bills, the "three sisters" or "triplets" as some of the sneering members called them. Of course, no one was prouder than the author after he fought them thru a lot of stiff necked opposition and got them past Senator Frank E. Whittemore over in the big branch by holding up some of Mr. Whittemore's own legislation while he thought it over. The next General Assembly ought to multiply the appropriation to buy land by ten and there is no reason why folks who wish to establish memorials be not encouraged to do so by giving the state some forest land. What mountain will be so enduring? Thru a curious chain of circumstances, a forestry policy was long delayed. It would have been begun four years ago had not the World War been in sight and there was every thought on it. Those who complained of the regulations in the Silver bills were reminded by former soldier members of the laws of sunny France which they voted down one time you must arrange to plant two more. Ohio ought to be setting out ten million trees a year, this observer believes, even if it had to go into debt to do it. The proposition would pay better in the long run than many of the highway investments that have been made, especially those in patented materials in which "protection expenses" go to political bosses.

Every day some new phase of Governor Davis's reorganization ripper blows up to show what was behind it all and how the automatic control really works. Take the case of the framers. They were interested in getting a bill through to protect highways against over loaded motor trucks and co-operated with Senator J. F. Burke of Lorain in getting one worked out. Then what happened? It went sailing through the Senate but when it got over to the House of Representatives some of Harry's headmen held it up. They did. They could pass dozens of little piffle bills that will be forgotten day after tomorrow and that only served some trifling interest. But this bill, Humph, it had no more chance than a Hebe on a Bittern picnic. And all to punish Senator Burke. Well, a man fighting for a good cause hardly ever has to fight alone long. It was soon that the Grange learned that has happened and they will find fires under the offending members. They will! Some of Mr. Burke's friends blamed it all on Rev. John W. Gore, chairman of the Highways committee, but others penetrated the secret better and went after the "main squeeze" as they say in the legislative halls. When the law makers come back it is almost a cinch the bill will be passed, because this body does not like to have the spotlight turned on it.

Here are two little thumb nail sketches of scenes at the closing of the Ohio General Assembly that ought to be preserved as showing the manner of functioning of the lawmakers in a session that has neither head nor tail. Senator G. E. Kuntler of Preble-co was much surprised that his bill to repeal the antineutral law of two years ago was on the calendar. He got up, he was well posted on his subject and began to talk. Right away the Senate broke into a little caucus. Senator A. H. Day of Cleveland came over mad as a wet hen. He did not know the bill had even been reported from committee. Neither did Mr. Kuntler, as a matter of fact. He complained that as member of the Public Health committee he had not attended the session, hence no quorum was announced. "Oh that was all right," volunteered Dr. LeFever, the Senator from Athens who is chairman "Senator Gardner signed the report afterwards." And thus there melted into this air the advertisement that this particular Legislature never was to indulge in the old practice of passing around committee reports. Doubtless there are two sides to the issue as indicated by the Kuntler bill which is designed to make the members of the county boards of education elective directly by the voters, rather than at a session of the presidents of the local boards. The measure awaits the Governor's signature. It will go into effect this fall if signed and not referred to the people. How far it will throw the boards into county politics is one of the issues and the facts at hand seem to argue against the bill. But whether the disadvantage will be offset by other advantages no one may say. The author of the bill argued that without this state law the entire system will ultimately become unpopular and a repeal be forced. Still it may become unpopular with the system. Who knows? The only particularly bad feature about the bill was the fact that it was in the matter, not at all referring to the author. Some of them said the measure was only a stalking horse to kill the Faris bill to eliminate district superintendents. But this seems not to have been true. The Kuntler bill being more liberal in terms than the Faris bill. Election of board members in city schools, with a few notable exceptions, has not worked badly and it seems that folks must wait and see how the new arrangement will turn out. That's all there is to it.

One may note that at least two actions sprang from just dislike for unfavorable publicity. What would be done if there were no observant newspapers and what is done when aforesaid popular oracles are functioning in two different and distinct "hings. Let us take the case of the Burns in question. They were the Burns liability insurance bill and the Talley pure water bill. The Burns bill would have passed if it had been rushed to a vote before members burred from home. The Talley bill was defeated the first time it came up although it had been recommended by former Governor James M. Cox as an urgently needed piece of legislation to protect people from epidemics such as that one at Salem which took dozens of lives. It provides for periodic inspection of water supplies, to the end that people may know whether the supplies are free from disease. The private water companies hopped into the situation and defeated it the first time it was voted on but the public sentiment almost overnight brought a speedy reversal.

OHIO SOLONS WILL MEET THURSDAY

Assembly Expected to Finish Work in Few Days.

COLUMBUS — The 84th general assembly will close up its law-making mill and go home a week from Saturday night unless leaders plans go wrong.

Senate and house members return to work next Thursday, following a recess since April 30. Leaders believe it will be necessary to remain in session only a few days.

Members of the two conference committees on taxation and general appropriations, will convene Tuesday under instructions to reconcile the differences between the two branches before Thursday.

The program of leaders is that only that tax on tangle and the general appropriations bill will be taken up after the vacation, but the chances are that members in both houses will insist that some of the remaining less important measures be voted on.

ACTION ON BLAIR IS DEFERRED

Fight Waged in Senate Against Harding's Nominee.

WASHINGTON — The senate finance committee deferred action Saturday on the nomination of Davis H. Blair of North Carolina, to be commissioner of internal revenue, opposed in the senate by Senator Johnson, Republican, California. After hearing evidence on both sides, the committee adjourned to resume the inquiry next Thursday.

VOTE TO END N. O. T. STRIKE IS HELD UP

CANTON — Intervention of Patrick Shea, international union organizer here Saturday held up the proposed vote of striking N. O. T. motormen and conductors as to whether they would return to work on city and interurban lines. Shea informed the men that he had arranged a conference in Akron Saturday afternoon with General Manager Blinn of the company, concerning his views on putting all of the gunmen to work.

It was reported Saturday night that Shea had been unable to get in touch with Blinn. Union officials here do not anticipate any action until Sunday afternoon.

PACKERS MEASURES TO BE PUT THRU CONGRESS

WASHINGTON — The long fight for government regulations of the packing industry seemed certain Saturday night to succeed at this session of congress.

Members who have pushed the regulation measure during the last few sessions believed Saturday night victory is sure this year.

This confidence came from the decision of the senate committee on agriculture Saturday to report the packer bill by Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, and indications that the house agricultural committee will report one of three bills before it next week.

"It seems practically certain that we will get thru a packer bill at this session," Norris said.

TWO WITNESSES IN M'GANNON TRIAL MISSING

CLEVELAND — Two McGannon alibi witnesses, a man and a woman, are reported missing by special investigators who have been seeking the whereabouts of the pair in connection with the further grand jury inquiry into perjury charges.

WINNING A JURY OF WOMEN

Young Barrister of Lima Has it All Planned

LIST OF VERBAL SWEETS

Experiences of the Future Are Forecasted

Farewell, Sergeant Business of Dickerson days, the collier of silk phrases, who knew how to make a jury puff up and think what smart fellows they were.

Farewell to all hackneyed words of praise that used to tickle the palate of jurymen!

Allen-co lawyers are now racking their brains for a vocabulary of new stuff, with the approach of women jurors not very far off.

They are turning to Mark Anthony's words to Cleopatra and to the irresistible phrases the poets used to capture the ears of the fair ones.

Such neat expressions as "you 12 intelligent men of the jury" or "honorable guardians of our sacred American rights" will no longer be any help to the barristers when they face a jury of women.

WINNERS HAN IN GUESSED

One young Lima lawyer, who is perhaps a step ahead of the others and has ideas of his own about women jurors, has framed a neat list of verbal sweets. By the way, the attorney is also a bachelor, which may likely help him in winning his cases, because he can probably command some of the nice things he says when he leaves Lima on a Saturday night to spend the week-end in a town not far distant.

Here is a sample of his practice speeches, which he says will capture the first jury of women he faces:

"I am indeed overcome, dear ladies of the jury, to gaze into the soul-stirring eyes of such a matchless bevy of American womanhood. Indeed, it strips me almost of my power of speech to stand here and plead for justice from the fairest hands that adorn our civic institutions.

"What can a mere man do, struck dumb by the dazzling power of 12 such lovely faces? I ask you, sweet ladies, to gaze upon the honest countenances of this persecuted, prisoner and tell me if he is guilty of neglecting his wife and 12 small children."

"Do you think that such a handsome man could do such a thing? No, I can see the answer in your deep, expressive eyes, ladies of the jury. Notice the neat appearance of the prisoner, ladies. See how his brown curls hang adorably over his Apollo-like brow. See how he hangs his modest head in the face of my truthful statements. Now, dear ladies, it would be a mockery on justice if such a man were to suffer at the hands of the most superbly beautiful women who ever made radiant the atmosphere of a court room."

WILL HE GET BY WITH IT?

Do you think that such a line as that would get the ladies? The youthful barrister seems confident that he can get it across, but some of the more settled attorneys still admit that you can never tell what a woman will do.

Solution of the problem seems to rest with the first woman jury to sit in Allen-co.

REILY NOMINATED FOR PORTO RICO GOVERNOR

TRAFFIC VIOLATION

W. B. Monroe, 36, of 1136 Forest-ave, paid a fine of $1 in criminal court Saturday morning, charged with driving a truck on the wrong side of the street on E. Second-ave near Forest-ave. He was arrested late Friday by Officers Watkins and Goebel.

Why You Must Have Iron to Make Your Body Strong and Your Brain Keen

Alert and Powerful—Value of Spinach and Organic Iron to Help Make Rich Red Blood and Revitalize Wornout Exhausted Nerves

WITH PLenty OF BLOOD AND IRON, YOUR BRAIN is the most wonderful thing in all creation but without these it is nothing. IRON TAKES OXYGEN from your lungs and carries it to your brain. Without iron your brain gets no oxygen; and without plenty of rich red blood and oxygen your brain becomes dull and heavy, YOUR INTELLECT POOR, your memory fails, YOU DO FOOLISH THINGS, make bad decisions and you really amount to nothing, so far as accomplishing anything of importance is concerned.

Also without iron YOUR BLOOD BECOMES THIN AND WATERY and loses its power to change food into living cells and tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good—you do not get the full strength out of it.

THERE ARE 30,000,000,000,000 RED BLOOD CORPUSCLES IN YOUR BLOOD AND EACH ONE MUST HAVE IRON.

When, as a result of iron starvation you get up feeling tired in the morning, when you find yourself nervous, irritable and easily upset; when you can no longer do your day's work without being all fagged out at night; when your digestion all goes wrong, or you have pains across the back and your face looks pale and drawn, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration, or until in your weakened condition you contract some serious disease, but eat more spinach and other iron-containing vegetables and take organic iron with them to help enrich your blood and revitalize your wornout exhausted nerves. Be sure that the iron you take is organic iron and not metallic or mineral iron, which people usually take. Organic iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Organic iron may be had from your druggist under the name of NUXATED IRON. Nuxated iron represents organic iron in such a highly concentrated form that one dose is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating half a quart of spinach or one quart of green vegetables. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Your money will be refunded if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results! For sale by all druggists.—Adv.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD—GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

Follow Your Natural Inclination

Your common sense (and most women are blessed with this admirable quality) would lead you to select corsets which are cheapest and at the same time best. You can get a C. B. a la Spirit as cheap as $1.00 or as high as $6.50, while the price range of the Regaliste is from $5.00 to $20.00. But the point is this—economy in the case of these brands pays because you are getting the best of materials and workmanship for the least money.

Come to our Corset Department and our corsetiere will be glad to fit you with the one, of the many styles shown, which is best suited to your figure.

—Front or Back Laced Models—

C. B. and Regaliste Corsets

For the Woman of Fashion

When Purchasing a New Corset Your Thoughts Naturally Turn to Brassieres and Bandeaux

At our Corset Department you will find a complete assortment of very good looking BRASSIERES—white Indian head, lace trimmed; all over embroidery and lace combined; pink brocaded corset material prettily trimmed with lace—$2.00, $2.50 and $3.50.

BANDEAUX of the Osborn or De Bevoise makes, front or back fastening, come in white or flesh satin, plain and lace trimmed; all lace; or pink satin with white lace at $2.00 and up to $3.75.

Veilings for Every Hat

Little hats, big hats, medium-sized hats, all must have their Veils this Spring. There are lovely pattern veils and smart Veilings by the yard. All of the newest and most distinctive patterns in all the wanted colors. The prices are quite reasonable.

Trimming Section

Feldman's Trimming Section is well known for the great variety and newness of its merchandise. We have for your inspection many new and up-to-the-minute dress fixings; a few of which we mention.

GEORGETTE VESTING

in the new Chantung shade, beautifully embroidered in small dainty designs and in the popular eyelet patterns. And there are narrow embroidered georgette edges to match that are used for trimming as well as for collars and cuffs.

ORGANDY EDGES

five inches wide, embroidered in dainty colorings and prettily scalloped or edged with Venice or filet lace. If used as ruffles it lends smartness to the summer dress or as collars and cuffs it gives a charming touch of brightness.

VENICE LACE BANDS

4 to 8 inches wide, are in popular demand and are now shown at Feldman's in a large and varied assortment of beautiful designs in white or ecru. They are extensively used for panels and bands in summer frocks.

Narrow White Kid

Are mighty clever. They are fancy cut patent leather in grey, red, tan, brown and royal blue on a white kid background.

Narrow belts being quite the mode we also show them in patent leather, suede and kid in black, grey, brown, navy, red and white.

39c and up to 69c

The Popular Sashes

are to be found at the Ribbon Section in a beautiful variety of materials and colorings—reasonably priced.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

It has been exactly one year since an honest writer was able to say the same things which we unhesitatingly say now. The business tide has definitely turned; the bottom has been virtually touched, but this, like any rule, has its exceptions. Many commodities are selling below cost of production, while there may be still materials and manufactures which have not been deflated and may not be until present needs are supplied. These are few. You can almost safely in many lines, contract definitely for future deliveries, and feel confident you will be the beneficiary.

Money is decidedly easier, and rapidly becoming cheaper. Reserve banks have reduced the discount rate one percent at some points, and a half percent at others. Bank clearings over the country and locally, show an upward trend. Thus reflects declining unemployment.

In the Lima district, conditions have not immediately followed the general trend, at least not as rapidly as it has taken place. Industries are still running under capacity but showing increasing inquiries. The railroad shops are putting men back to work; more trainmen are also in service and freight shipments are increasing in and out of the district.

On the financial side, banks here are still pinched for loanable funds, and building companies are lacking capital. There will be only a limited number of homes erected in Lima this summer despite urgent demand and in many cases, cash buyers waiting.

Stocks, bonds and securities are shooting upward. The day of the eight percent investment will soon be over. Idle capital is accumulating thru absence of expansion and liquidation of stocks. Merchants are right on top of the job and you can buy anything in Lima today as cheaply as in any place in the world. The larger stores are doing an increased business in volume, the perhaps not in money.

The future is bright, the next six weeks possibly stalemated, midsummer showing the usual routine; but for those who have prepared, the fall months will return a goodly harvest. This country and the Lima district look good to us today.

MOTHERS' DAY

COMPATIBLE with an existing institution, Governor Harry L. Davis has issued a proclamation, designating Sunday, May 8, as Mothers' Day.

Anything that mankind can do in honor of motherhood is not too much. It is altogether fitting and proper that a day should be set apart once each year for special observance, as a token of appreciation of what motherhood has done and is still doing for the world.

The unselfish love and devotion that a mother gives to her offspring deserves a return in equal measure and that we owe her a deep and lasting debt of gratitude is generally accepted.

Therefore, those who still have the priceless boon of the possession of their mother in life, should present her on this day a bouquet of her favorite flowers and those whose best friend has been summoned from this life should wear in the lapel of the coat her favorite ribbon on this day. There ought to be a general display of the flag also on Sunday.

THE WEEK AT COLUMBUS

AS was expected, war has broken out within the confines of the state against the Governor Davis reorganization bill, which seeks to rip wide open the present plan of government in Ohio and will do so unless the courts hold invalid the emergency clause enacted in connection with the passage of the bill by the legislature, opening the way to a referendum by the people, which is denied unless a favorable court ruling is secured.

Even then, there is no assurance that the desires of the enemies of the measure will prevail, for if approved by the people in a test vote at the polls, it will become a law and in full effect and force on July 1. The Democratic state and county organizations, aided by numerous Republicans high up in the councils of their party, are starting a movement in opposition to the proposed ripper and the sort of fruit that will be borne is for future events to determine.

Seven bills enacted by the General Assembly were made law during the past week by signature of the Governor: Fine for false registration at hotels; increase of salary for deputy state auditor, cashier of state treasury and two deputy supervisors of state offices; requiring teachers in state institutions to have qualifications of teachers in public schools; reimbursing American Legion Post of Ada for $2,059 turned over to state treasury when they were federalized in 1917; prohibiting tampering with or changing railroad protective signals; repealing law requiring automatic brakes for street cars; authorizing incorporation of soldiers' organizations to build and maintain clubs for themselves, not for profit.

According to plans now being laid, the people of Ohio may be called upon to vote, in November, on three constitutional amendment proposals as a result of the work of the General Assembly. Soldiers' bonus and senatorial redistricting will be submitted and likewise the question of taxation if an agreement is reached on that problem.

Waiting now for reconvening on May 12th and taking a retrospective view of the accomplishments of the General Assembly to date, it is found that many laws have been passed. A state prohibition enforcement department is authorized, further restrictive laws passed against liquor, fixing fines for violations and removing screens from places where soft drinks are sold.

Several measures designed to aid labor were enacted, most important of which was in the direction of increasing workmen's compensation awards. Seeking to curb crime a number of measures were passed levying heavy penalty for the law's infraction. Farmers are permitted to organize buying and selling bodies without violating anti-trust laws, importation of diseased animals is forbidden, game preserves are established and a state forestry department provided.

Very little has thus far been accomplished in the matter of taxation, save to permit breaking of the provisions of Smith one per cent law for three years by a vote of the people. State highway department is authorized to fill up gaps between improved roads to provide continuous good roads from county seats to principal municipalities.

Considerable legislation was enacted in behalf of soldiers and for betterment of humanitarian laws and for education.

Many things of importance remain to be accomplished and whether the period of recess will result in a break between the Governor and the Senate being patched up is problematical. If continued, it is certain that legislation of the greatest importance will fall.

IN WASHINGTON

OFFICIAL Washington has scarcely time for anything while the uncertainty of the settlement of the big international question exists. Inability of the allies to force Germany to a definite understanding in the matter of reparation for the war and the ultimatum that is finally laid down, giving the German government one more opportunity to comply with the terms of the Versailles treaty to prevent an invasion of the Ruhr district, and the remote possibility of war again being started in Europe, has absorbed the interest of high officials.

Until tranquility overseas is assured and that country goes seriously about the real work of reconstruction, the entire world will be more or less unsettled and disturbed.

There is said to be very little possibility of the adoption of the so-called sales tax, to take the place of certain items of war tax still in force. Representative John L. Cable of this district has been spending considerable time and effort against the Smoot sales tax plan. The opinion seems to prevail that it would only result in the shifting of a considerable portion of the tax burden from the wealthier classes to those less able to pay.

Emergency tariff occupies attention and interest and the adoption of the Knox resolution declaring peace with Germany will bring no appreciable change in conditions as its effect until finally disposed of and made a working instrument.

U. S. naval plans have brought on a serious row and lines are being drawn for a fight on the delay of President Harding's plan for disarmament. Senators and Pomerene are leading the forces seeking to hold up a naval building plan and for the immediate calling of a conference of representatives of the United States, Great Britain and Japan on disarmament. The President is committed to a policy of opposing such a conference at this time, on account of the state of international affairs, but he assures that he is ready to urge an international agreement limiting armaments at the first practical moment.

The Knox peace resolution, adopted by the Senate, encountered delay in the House. There appears to be a disposition on the part of Congress to hold up peace with Germany until the critical situation overseas is cleared away. Many weeks may pass before the lower House concurs with the Senate in the establishment of peace with Germany.

Secretary of Labor Davis has not entirely given up hope of effecting a settlement of the marine wage controversy that has threatened a tieup of American shipping. Conferences are being continued.

Congress has at least gone on record in favor of listing the slackers during the recent war. The war department slacker list, at the request of Representative Johnson, of South Dakota, has been placed on the Congressional record.

Action on the Colombian treaty continues a volcano of uncertainty, on account of the many angled conditions back of the recent action of the administration forces. While threats of a flap among G. O. P. heads still exists as a result of the Colombian question, passing time appears to be removing the tendency in that direction.

Congress has not as yet altogether found its bearings on important questions, but the time has arrived for the burden of full responsibility to rest on the shoulders of the administration. All branches of government are controlled by the G. O. P. and there can be no shifting of responsibility in explaining away dereliction, studied or otherwise.

MISS LIMA: "It used to be said that only two things were certain—death and taxes. Add to that now that Germany will pay."

JUST FOLKS—BY EDGAR A. GUEST

MOTHER'S DAY

Tender, gentle, brave and true,
Loving us whatever we do!
Waiting, watching at the gate
For the footsteps that are late,
For the footstep that are late,
Sleepless thru the hours of night,
Till she knows that we're all right,
Pleased with every word we say—
That is ever mother's way.

Others sneer and turn aside,
Mother welcomes us with pride;
Over-joyful of us, too,
Glorious in all we do,
First to praise and last to blame,
Love that always stays the same,
Following us where'er we stray—
That is ever mother's way.

She would grant us all we seek,
Give her strength where we are weak.
Beauty? She would let it go
For the joy we yearn to know.
Life? She'd give it gladly, too,
For the dream that we pursue;
She would toll that we might play—
That is ever mother's way.

Not enough for her are flowers,
Her life is so blent with ours
That in all we dare and do
She is partner, thru and thru;
Suffering when we suffer pain,
Happy when we smile again,
Living with us, night and day—

Men and women who are in places of authority should gain much power while the stars are in their present position.

There is a prophecy that there will be serious troubles in South Africa before the summer is over.

There is again an indication of the possibility of war for the United States, although it is not likely that this will actually lead to warfare.

There will be an unusually large number of electric storms in this country during the coming summer.

Persons whose birthday this is, will be very successful in business during the coming year if it they are unfailingly industrious.

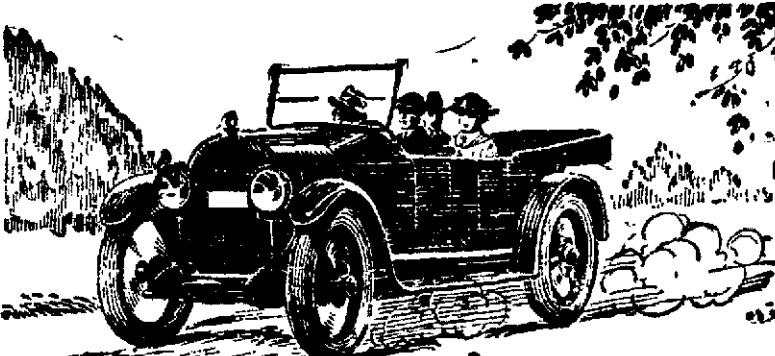

Children born today are likely to be high-tempered and intolerant, but will be very lucky if they are trained to overcome these characteristics.

POSTPONED!

—The time when the battery "just wears out." A GOOD battery, no matter what its make, dies a natural death when it "just wears out." It may never have a buckled plate or worn out separators or cracked jars. Yet the time comes when it no longer produces power. It has "just worn out."

That happens when a certain quantity of power-producing active material has dropped off the positive plates.

IN the Philadelphia Diamond Grid Battery this is prevented by the PHILCO Slotted Retainer.

The battery is guaranteed for two years.

There is no other guarantee in the battery field that compares with this for length and liberality.

47 TO GRADUATE AT CELINA

Lack of Water Endangers Retention of Factory

CELINA—(Special)—Commencement exercises of the Celina high schools will be held Thursday night, May 19, at the opera house.
There are 47 members in the graduating class which is the largest in the history of the school.

Celina was somewhat flurried by the overtures of Dayton capitalists to the Miami Tractor and Manufacturing Co. of this place to move the plant to Dayton. The stock of the concern is owned entirely by Mor-cor-co and Dayton men and the lack of water facilities was the cause of some of the latter stockholders arguing the change.

Council and citizens met and assured the company officials they could proceed with their work and the water situation would be taken care of by the city.

The Mercer-co Humane society held their annual election of officers: J. W. Lirce was elected president; Miss Mabel Andrews, vice president; R. H. Chapman, secretary; Miss Lucy McDonald, secretary; A. C. F. Gilberg, treasurer.
The other members of the board of directors are: A. D. McDonald, Miss Mayme Griffith, Fred Dier and W. H. Pond.

Gus Amato, Jr., Celina and James Allen, Coldwater, were arrested for speeding and fined $1 and costs by Mayor Morrow.

INDIANS SHUT OUT WHITE SOX BY SCORE OF 8 TO 0

Chicago Unable To Stop Mails-Get Only Five Hits In Game

CLEVELAND—The Indians smeared on more war paint Saturday and repeated their slaughter against the White Sox, shutting them out by a score of 8 to 0 for the second consecutive time. "Duster" Mails, one of the juveniles of the hurling party, performed on the mound for the tribe and held the Chicago visitors to five scattered hits.

Wilkinson, pitching for Chicago, was a target for the Cleveland batsmen, who jumped on him in the first inning and registered up a trio of runs.

He allowed 14 hits during the game, and proved too weak to stand against the world's champions.

Score Only One Run Against Four Tallies Made By Puffy Team

CHICAGO—The Cincinnati Reds were trounced here Saturday by the Chicago Cubs, who strived for victory in celebration of "Johnny Evers' Day" at the north side park.

The score of 4 to 1 tells the story, with Brenton and Luque branded by the fans as the reason the Reds were so decisively walloped.

They allowed 13 hits during the game, while their team was only able to gather in seven from Martin, who pitched a remarkable game for the Chicago prides.

Grimes, who played at first for the Cubs, is credited with a dozen put-outs.

Bohne made the lone run for the Reds, which was registered in the first stanza. It was not until the fourth inning that the Cubs got started. During this frame they gathered in two runs, and repeated it in the eighth.

SHORT SHAVINGS

Petrons of a Boston restaurant noticed tucked on the wall a sheet of paper on which was printed in bold characters:

The umbrella in the stand below belongs to the champion heavyweight fighter of the world. He is coming right back.

Five minutes later umbrella and paper had disappeared. In their place was another notice:

"Umbrella is now in possession of the champion marathon runner of the world. He is not coming back."

A Scottish piper complained to his colonel that he was the victim of maltreatment by members of his regiment.

The usual inquiry followed, and then the colonel, having heard the evidence, said: "Who called the piper a blighter?"

"I did, sir," said a young subaltern, saluting. "But who called the blighter a piper?"

A little girl heard her father call the maid "a darling little angel." "Mamma," she asked a little later, "what's an angel?"

"An angel," explained the mother, "is something that flies, and

"Well," interrupted the little girl, "papa called Julia a darling little angel just now. Will she fly?"

"She certainly will," replied the mother, "the first thing in the morning."

FOREIGN TRADE COUNCIL CLOSES CONVENTION

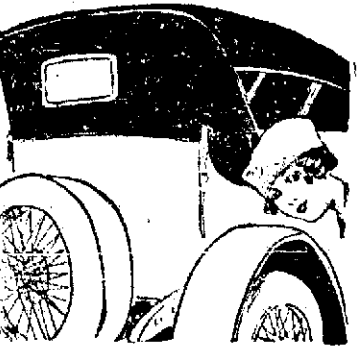

CLEVELAND.—The eighth annual convention of the National Foreign Trade Council closed a four day's session here Saturday with the adoption of the platform for the coming year, as recommended by the general convention committee, which was drafted after consideration of the many addresses and discussions at the general and group sessions of the convention.

"The business world is suffering today from unbalanced exchanges. Notwithstanding the position of the United States as a creditor nation, the present unstable financial condition of a large part of the world, especially of Europe, is the fundamental cause of our own business depression," the committee report said. "A return to normal conditions in this country depends in a large part upon an improvement of our foreign trade. The present retrogression is evidenced by the minimum of the country's export trade of $228,000,000 in June, 1920, decreasing in October to $251,000,000 and in March, 1921 to $284,000,000."

SPRINGFIELD WHITE SOX TO PLAY IN LIMA TODAY

Season To Be Opened This Afternoon When Teams Take To Field

"Play Ball!" This welcome phrase will formally usher in the 1921 baseball season here this afternoon, when the Springfield White Sox are slated to clash with the Lima semi-pro team at the Murphy-st ball park.

The Lima team under the leadership of Bernie Halloran and Game called promptly at 3 o'clock. Special street car service to and from Murphy-st ball park.

Official opening of baseball season in Lima.

Diamond put in good shape, and grandstand remodeled.

Frank Callahan is completely remodeled, and the managers are of the belief that they will have a neat surprise for local fans when their team steps on the field at 3 o'clock for the opening of the game.

It is predicted that the largest opening day crowd that ever witnessed the Independents open a season, will be on hand to see the official opening of the ball season in our own home town.

Arrangements were completed Saturday whereby the Ohio Electric has agreed to furnish special car service prior to the game and after the contest.

WALK IS SHORT
But a little matter of walking 10 minutes from the public square will hitch you to a comfortable seat in one of the leanest ball parks in the country and which provides stamping ground for as good a semi-pro club as is mustered together anywhere.

The local management promises a great game today, and invites the fans to ride there if they are not satisfied with the brand of ball that is expected to be dished out.

FROM CAMPUS TO CLASSICS IS BATSMAN

CLEVELAND—From the college campus direct to the major leagues without previously having seen a professional baseball diamond is the unique record of J. Riggs Stephenson, second baseman with the world's champion Cleveland Americans.

Stephenson probably is attracting as much attention as any player in the big leagues. His play around the keystone sack equals that of a veteran. In his first seven games with the Indians he made 15 hits out of 26 times at bat, an average of .577, and accepted 25 fielding chances perfectly.

When Bill Wambegans, unassisted triple play hero of the world's series last October, sustained a fractured arm during the trip north from the spring training camp at Dallas, Manager Tris Speaker filled the gap with Harry Lunte, utility infielder. A few days later Lunte wrenched his ankle and Speaker found himself without a second baseman.

Stephenson, who signed with the Indians last spring, was attending the University of Alabama. He was to have joined the team when he finished his studies in June. Speaker explained the circumstances to the university officials and his request that Stephenson be excused until May was granted.

A week before his leave of absence from college expired Stephenson learned that neither Wambegans nor Lunte would be ready to play by May 1 and he notified Manager Speaker that he had decided to remain with the Indians all season, the college authorities giving him permission to return in the fall to complete his course in engineering. He will receive his degree in February.

Stephenson is an all around athlete making the college baseball, football, track and basketball team and being picked on all—Southern football, baseball and track teams.

The Alabamian received a tryout with the Indians at Dallas for two weeks. This was the first professional diamond he had ever seen. He reported to Cleveland April 12, the day before the American League season opened. His record for the first seven days follows:

Opposing Team	AB	R	H	PO	A	E
St. Louis	4	0	2	0	0	0
St. Louis	4	0	3	2	2	0
St. Louis	4	2	3	3	6	0
St. Louis	4	1	3	2	2	0
Detroit	5	2	3	5	3	0
Detroit	3	2	2	1	0	0
St. Cleveland	2	1	1	1	1	0

Totals ..... 26 8 15 14 14 0

Up to this year Stephenson played basketball on the University of Alabama team. Sewell was the second baseman, but changed to shortstop when he joined the New Orleans Southern Association team. At Speaker's suggestion, Stephenson switched to second base.

INTER-CLASS TENNIS MEET AT CENTRAL

Central High will start an inter-class doubles tennis tournament Monday. The opening match will be played between Robt. Binkley and Ray Reeves of the 7th grade, and C. McPherson and B. Moulton of the 8th grade on one of the courts.

The other match Monday will be between W. Wallace and S. Churchill of the 8th, and F. Dvan and R. Dark of the 7th grade.

The games will be played each evening. Two of the College courts have been prepared and are now in good condition. All games will start promptly at 4:15 p. m. Twenty-two doubles teams have entered in the tournament.

GET TIME LIMIT.
The first round will be completed by next Friday. The finals will be played on May 20th. Winners of a match must win three out of five sets. If the doubles are completed according to the schedule a singles tournament will be played.

It was impossible to start both doubles and singles due to the long list of entries. The tournament is attracting considerable interest in the high school and since the inter-class baseball is finished tennis will be the chief sport at Central for the remainder of the year.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Joe Lynch, of New York, champion bantam-weight boxer, and Pal Moore, of Memphis, will face each other in the ring tonight in a 12 round, no-decision match for the championship.

Now Comes Novel Defense To Halt Babe Ruth's Hitting

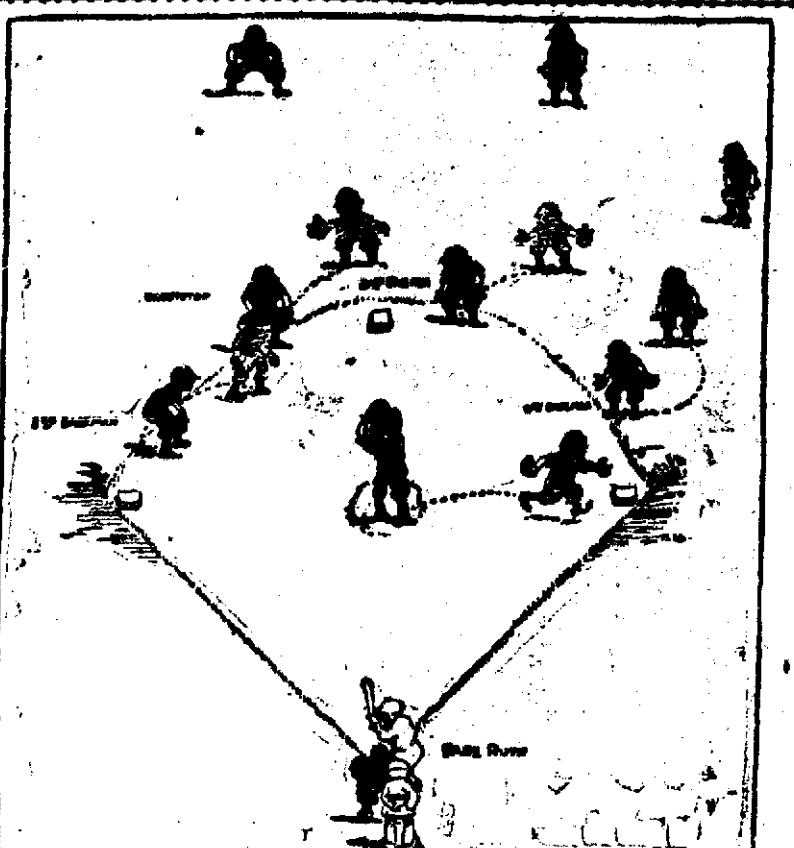

Diagram shows how Red Sox infield plays for Babe Ruth. Black figures indicate positions of players when Ruth comes to bat. White figures indicate positions to which they move, the pitcher covers, ing first on the play when the ball is finally hit.

A few days ago Manager Speaker, Babe seldom slaps the ball into the of the Indians pulled a clever bit of strategy when he produced an "open defense" shift to check an attempt at a squeeze play by the opposition. Now Stuffy McInnis, Manager Duffy's aide on the Red Sox, has devised an infield shift to cope with Babe Ruth's terrific smashes.

Carpentier Off For America With Corps Of His Side-Kicks

(By HENRY L. FARRELL)
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK—Georges Carpentier, French war hero, and the heavyweight champion of Europe, will arrive here May 16 to get ready for his championship tilt with Jack Dempsey.

The Frenchman with his manager, Francois Descamps, Paul Journee, a sparring partner, and a cook, sailed Saturday from France on La Savie.

Immediately on his arrival here Carpentier will go to Manhasset, L. I., where a large country place has been leased in one of the most exclusive neighborhoods.

He will follow a training schedule all of his own in getting ready for the bout.

Descamps, who has handled him since he started as a 14-year-old boy, will be his chief trainer. Gus Wilson, with him a long time as valet and masseur, will be the first assistant trainer.

JOURNEE IS COMING

Journee, who is coming with him as a sparring partner, is said to be the next best heavyweight in France. Carpentier will secure the rest of his sparring family in New York. Joe Janette, the big colored boxer, already having been engaged.

As soon as Carpentier gets settled in his training camp the fight will become of chief interest in the sport columns.

Dempsey already is established with his retinue in Atlantic City, where he will condition himself to defend the title.

The champion likes the sea air and he did not object to the selection of Jack Lyons, his manager, who contemplates many dollars from the vacation spenders who will want to see the champion in action.

Kearns is having difficulty in getting sparring partners for the heavyweight king. He had hopes of securing Kid Norfolk, the star colored heavyweight, who was of such value to Bill Brennan when he was training for his memorable battle with the champion.

Norfolk was willing, it is understood, but Leo Flynn, his manager, put his foot down, claiming that if the champion drew the color line in his ring work, he should do the same thing in the gym. Kearns has secured some middleweights and lightweights, but Dempsey doesn't want them.

GAMBLERS IN MICHIGAN TO BE LUCKLESS

LANSING, Mich.—Drastic punishment for persons convicted of "fixing" any professional athletic contest in Michigan is provided in a bill passed by the state legislature. The measure, which had the backing of Governor Groesbeck, makes "throwing of any contest punishable by a fine of not more than $5,000 or five years imprisonment or both."

The bill reads:

"Whoever corruptly gives, offers or promises to any person engaged in professional base ball, boxing, wrestling or other competitive athletic pursuit any gift or gratuity whatever, with intent to influence him to lose or try to lose any contest in which he is participating or expects to participate, or any persons engaged in professional base ball, boxing wrestling or other competitive athletic pursuits, who corruptly solicits or accepts a gift or gratuity or a promise to make a gift or to do an act beneficial to himself, under an agreement or with the understanding that he shall lose or try to lose any contest in which he is participating or expects to participate, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than five thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the state prison for a period of not more than five years, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court."

Lions' Club Meets Rotes Tuesday In Business League

Fur is expected to fly next Tuesday afternoon at the Murphy-st ball park when the Rotarians meet the Lions in the second game of the Business Club League.

Last Thursday the Rotes easily defeated the Kiwanians, and contemplate having as easy a time when they face the Lions Tuesday.

Clem Thompson says his boys will be in far better shape than they were last Thursday, and that he is entertaining no doubt but that the Rotes will again mop up on their opponents.

Bill Harman, of the Lions, has a different opinion. He declares that his boys are roaring and that they will eat the Rotes alive when they clash Tuesday.

A revised schedule was completed Saturday, which calls for several shifts from the original line-up.

The new schedule follows:

Tuesday, May 10—	Lions vs. Rotary.
Thursday, May 12—	Kiwanis vs. Elks.
Tuesday, May 17—	Rotary vs. Elks.
Thursday, May 19—	Lions vs. Kiwanis.
Tuesday, May 24—	Kiwanis vs. Elks.
Thursday, May 26—	Rotary vs. Lions.
Tuesday, May 31—	Lions vs. Elks.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN

By ALFRED · STEPHEN · BRYAN

How To Beat The Heat—Hail To The Norfolk Jacket And Well Met, Helmet!—Cool Shirts For Country And Course—Knickers That Decorate, Not Desecrate, The Legs

What To Wear And When And Where To Wear It

New York, May 2

THEY tell a droll story about a grizzled hunter who, after buying a hat, always fired a charge of buckshot through the crown to take away that "peaky new look", as he put it, with stout scorn. A quaint and quizzical tale, though one which reflects the attitude of not a few men toward clothes—they shrink from having them seem overly spick-and-span. This is all in the mind, as was the case of the woman who said she didn't believe in ghosts, but was terribly afraid of them. In these days when designers plan with forethought how to put smart wrinkles into a suit and when the traditional squeak is taken out of your shoes before you wear them, the danger of looking blatantly "dressed up" is quite remote.

Among the common mistakes to avoid is that of getting clothes which are too tight in the misbelief that these make one look slenderer. Tightly fitting suits were never in fashion—the drape of a coat should be body-tracing, and no more. Nor should the shoulders be excessively narrow. The proper shoulder is natural and follows the contour of the figure. Trousers should hang easily and rather straight, obviating the need of shaking out the folds when one rises. Everything that is uncomfortable is unfashionable, particularly in summer. The Well-Dressed Man never looks as though he were forced into his clothes, as toothpaste into a tube. The present-season mode inclines toward easy drape, rather than snug fit.

The first week or so, a coat should always be worn completely buttoned, so that it will mould itself, by gentle pressure, to the lines of shoulder, chest and waist. Thereafter, it may be left undone or only the top or bottom button may be fastened, as one prefers.

The Norfolk jacket, as dear to the Englishman as his tweed cap or his briar pipe, has undergone a revival of this year, and various spruce types of this standard sporting garment are again procurable. One of them is portrayed in the first column. It has the all-round belt, the deep patched side pockets with flaps and buttons, the free, swishy skirts and the expanding pleats in the back. Knickerbockers to match, as below.

You may obtain this sort of jacket in a sheaf of seemly stuffs, as tweeds, homespun, gabardines, flannels, tropic-thin worsteds, knitted cloths, as well as such confessedly country fabrics as corduroys, twilletes, wool crases, stockings, Shantung, pongee and surah silks, doeskins, mole-skins, tropical linens, cricket cloths and the like.

Individual preferences and climatic conditions differ so widely, that the color, cloth and cut must be left to the judgment of the wearer and the specific purpose for which the garments are intended.

Helmets of cork, Chinese pith, raffia or Madagascar straw are, to foreigners, an oft-told tale which needs no re-telling. Americans are just beginning to befriend them for sports and country knockabout. A smart helmet is pictured at top of second column. It has air-vents in the crown to cool the head and the underbrim is faced with green to lessen sun-blink.

For warmish days, nothing is preferable to shirts of cool white chevrot or Oxford, as shown.

FEAR MUTINY IN CONGRESS

Senators Want Finger in Political Pap Pie

HARDING IS CRITICISED

Fess Charged With Waving the Bloody Shirt

Members will be ordered when it comes to the consideration of several of the administration's pet measures. There is a nucleus for disturbance in the group of progressive Senators, headed by Senators Hiram Johnson and William E. Borah, who seem determined to harass President Harding at every step and if they are reinforced by Senators hereafter regarded as friendly to the new administration, the President will have a hands full trying to preserve harmony in the legislative halls.

To add to the disagreeableness of the Ohio situation, the two new members of the Ohio delegation are considering about trying to displace the members who they are to follow as a group. They are very about accepting guidance from any of the older members who might use the leadership as a means of furthering Senatorial ambitions next year and the fact also is causing the older members to go slow in assisting them. The choice among the young group lies between Representatives Nicholas Longworth and Simon D. Fess, yet both of these members are looked upon as likely candidates for the Senatorial toga.

The delegation includes two or three unbridled members who are not amenable to party discipline. Notably Mr. Knight of Akron, and a number of members are desirous of avoiding anything that resembles an open split in the delegation. Unless one leader appears who is able to identify the conflicting elements, the Ohio delegation solidly Republican for the first time in many years probably will find itself hopelessly divided before the present session shall have come to an end.

Unofficial announcement last week of Attorney General Harry M. Hughes may cast aside his cabin portfolio in order to run for the public nomination for Senator next year created somewhat of a sensation in Ohio and it would not be comforting to his enemies to know the favorable reaction that has toward his candidacy. The ink and file of the party throat a state seems to have taken to his a of going after the Hynicka organization in Cincinnati and other leaders in the state who were disloyal or lukewarm in the Harding candidacy last year. There have been cradled under his banner hundreds of Ohio Republicans who heretofore FEAR MUTINY—GALLY 2 . . . . . offered himself as a candidate for public office. It is the belief here that if Daugherty decides to run, the way will be made clear for him by the withdrawal of several men who aspire to run for the Senatorship and that the field will be left open to him to contest with any man who desires to oppose him on the issue that will be raised by his entry into the contest.

The boom of Simeon D. Fess suffered a severe setback this week because of attack made upon the southern members of Congress last week. At first it was the Democrats who were incensed at his statement, but later the Republican members of Congress viewed his utterances as calculated to upset the progress President Harding has made in making a dent in the "solid South."

The Democratic leaders alleged, and their charges were not refuted, that Fess was very unfair in his attack and further than that, went into the ragbag to review the old "bloody shirt" that was waved years ago by Joseph Benson Foraker to rally the northern states to Republicanism. Fess charged that the Democrats in Congress had seized virtually all of the important minority committee assignments for the southern members, but he neglected to add that there are only 29 Democratic members in Congress from the so-called northern states.

Further, the Democratic leaders were able to show that care had been taken to discriminate in favor of these twenty members to avoid cause for just such charges as Fess made. The reaction was such as to cause the Republican leaders to doubt the wisdom of Fess' attack, and there was much criticism of it in which his Ohio colleagues joined freely.

JAPS, GERMANS IN DRUG WAR

Nations Race for Control of World Trade

NEW YORK. — (By Associated Press) — Carleton Simon, special deputy police commissioner, today charged that Japan and Germany were waging a contest for world wide control of narcotics.

Addressing the National Police convention, Dr. Simon, in command of the local narcotic division, asserted that not only was Japan manufacturing drugs on a vast scale, but some of her merchants were importing narcotics from the United States only to smuggle them back into the country and China at large profits.

He explained that while American manufacturers were barred from selling their products to peddlers here, they were not prohibited from exporting their wares.

Japanese merchants, he continued, were purchasing every ounce of narcotic drugs they could buy in America.

"On the other hand," said Dr. Simon, "we have in Germany the biggest manufacturers of drugs in the world. These men know that Japan is attempting to obtain control of the narcotic drug situation of the world. In consequence, there is a drug war at present between these two nations."

He maintained that illicit drug vending was deteriorating the morals of Americans, producing criminals and paralyzing the progress of civilization.

To combat drug peddling, he recommended efficient co-operation between cities in anti-drug warfare, and suggested individual state laws, uniform in type, or an amended Harrison law that would "strike at the evil from the standpoint of the user."

Dr. Simon attributed much of the increase in crime in this country to the spread of the drug evil, which he characterized as "dangerous and fearsome."

REDISCOUNT RATE TO BE CUT

Federal Reserve Action Expected to Lower Prices

WASHINGTON. — (By United Press) — Reduction of the rediscount rate of the federal reserve, which is soon to occur, according to an announcement at the treasury department, will tend to reduce the price level on all commodities.

Formal announcement of the rate will be made by the 12 federal reserve banks within a few days.

The rediscount rate now stands at an average of six percent. Before the war, it never rose above 4 percent and sometimes was lower. The rediscount rate is the rate which banks have to pay to borrow money from the federal reserve banks.

When they can borrow cheaply the banks can loan cheaply to business men, manufacturers, and other customers. High re-discount rates make high overhead costs and prices to the consumer.

The lowering of the re-discount rate may make available to business men and manufacturers approximately $500,000,000 in credit which the federal reserve system now has pled up in addition to its legal reserve. This credit, scattered thru the 12 banks, may be mobilized and sent to any one district on short notice. Or, it may be dispensed thru several districts.

The purpose of the treasury and the heads of the reserve system in lowering the re-discount rate is to revive production and sales thruout the country, it was explained at the treasury.

"Easier money" is expected to be one of the immediate effects of the move. "Tight money" has long been blamed for high prices, and the economic depression.

SLASH MADE SATURDAY IN PRICE OF CHEVROLET

Announcement of the new price was wired from the factory to A. B. Burkholder, 413 Garfield-ave, representative for western Ohio.

The reductions will range from $160 to $175 and will place the Chevrolet on a competitive basis with the cheapest car on the market. Burkholder predicted that the lowering of prices will greatly stimulate production.

A Letter To The Public

You are paying at the present time anywhere from $8 to $10 a ton for coal. That means that if you burn ten tons of coal a year, you spend close to $100 a year for heat. I know that it hurts you as well as myself.

From all that we can learn, knowing the facts and conditions of the country, which includes the industries, the railroads, the miners and too many other items to mention, you will not be able to buy coal much cheaper if any next winter.

You know that freight rates are a big factor in high priced coal. Congress is at present trying to reduce the freight rates on coal and food. But with the conditions as they are, it is doubtful whether Congress can do anything for us next winter.

Now under our plan of selling coal, (and it is simple)—direct from mine to you, you benefit at all times. You ask why? Because you get your coal from us at market price at mine and pay the freight, meaning a saving to you of all brokers, jobbers, wholesalers and retailers' profits.

You do not need to buy ten tons. Buy as you need it. We will be glad to have you call up by phone or write and we will come to your home and explain our plan.

READY TO ATTACK DAVIS "RIPPER"

Democratic Leaders Meet in Columbus to Start Fight

APPEAL FOR SUGAR BARONS

Political Reflections for Past Half-Fortnight

(By J. W. FISHER)

An assembly of protest was held in Columbus Thursday, at the headquarters of the Franklin Co. Democratic club, a meeting of the Democratic state central and executive committees, county chairmen and chairwomen and others, for the purpose of laying plans to conduct a referendum on the reorganization ripper bill, sponsored by Governor Harry L. Davis, passed by the legislature and declared to be an emergency measure.

That there should be no question as to the official character of the call for the meeting, the signatures of W. W. Durbin, chairman of the executive committee, with S. E. Godden, the secretary, and S. M. Douglass and C. N. Greer, chairman and secretary of the central committee, were attached.

Feeling certain that the emergency clause of the ripper will be declared invalid by the courts, the Democratic organization meeting was called for the purpose of arranging to prevent this altogether indefensible and revolutionary measure from going into effect, by carrying the fight against it to the people.

The war to be started in the courts is largely on the question of whether the constitution of Ohio is still in force and effect, or whether a Governor, seeking exorbitant powers, can force a legislature to defy popular rights and to ignore constitutional provisions.

The election call of the Democratic organization sets forth that, if the bill becomes a law, the Governor will be a political boss, holding every state official and employee in the hollow of his hand and avers that he will be the head of a political machine such as has never before dreamed of in Ohio.

In view of the fact that members of the senate, Republicans, fought the Davis bill to the last ditch and that there are hundreds and thousands of Republican voters in the state who applaud them for doing it, the fight inaugurated by the Democratic organization cannot be termed a partisan move altogether.

George Stauffer, Republican leader in Putnam Co., with headquarters in Ottawa, is getting friendly with the sugar industry. George, in addition to being a bright and shining light in the G. O. P. organization, also essays the role of banker, real estate man, newspaper editor, George stuck in the bulk of the Republican ship in Putnam Co. when near all save he had fled and now it begins to look like he is going to be rewarded for his constancy.

Senator Francis Bartholomew, for whom George has fit and full and almost died for to these many years, has given the aspiration of Stauffer for appointment as internal revenue collector at Toledo, to succeed Frank B. Miles, his O. K. and that probably means that George will land. Stauffer's exact reason for so doing isn't apparent, but he has asked Senator Willis, his political patron saint, to use his influence in favor of tariff him.

duties that will protect the northwestern Ohio sugar beet industry. Accompanying his letter, Stauffer forwarded to Willis a statement by F. H. Hubbard, general manager of the Ohio Sugar Co., asking a duty of two cents a pound on Cuban sugar. Of course, that's intended to clear the way for Ohio sugar and force the buyers to keep down the price for the Cuban crop, so they can compete with the home made sweet stuff or afford an excuse for boosting the price to the consumer.

The statement shows that the Ohio company, which sold 12,317,985 pounds of sugar during the past year, realized a net profit of $18,941.93. The present margin of 12 cents a pound on 100 pounds of sugar is based, the statement says, on a price of eight cents for sugar on hand. The prevailing price is now below that figure and wipes out the margin.

Placing a duty on Cuban imports would precipitate a war between buyers in this and other countries. The Cuban planters are business men and will sell in the best market. If, facing a duty of two cents a pound, purchasers of the Cuban crop cannot meet prices here, quite naturally they will sell elsewhere. Perhaps Stauffer doesn't see it now, but he is likely paying the way for higher sugar prices to the consumer in this country. That'll put him and his party in pretty with the sugar men, but what about the ultimate consumer?

Rumor is a busy old bird, in the realm of society, business and politics—mainly politics. Since it has been generally accepted as a fact that Governor Harry L. Davis will not come again as a candidate for that office, it is determined to "run" for the United States Senate, to succeed Atlee Pomeroy, the names of many persons within the old parties have been suggested in connection with the gubernatorial marathon.

Most prominent among them all is that sturdy citizen of Cincinnati, Hon. Judson Harmon, former Governor and a possibility as Presidential timber in a Democratic convention. If "Uncle Jud" could be prevailed upon to become a candidate again, it is agreed that there would be consternation in the Republican camp. They know Judson Harmon and his strength with the people and they fear him.

Then there is Judge Hugh Nichols, who was lost with many others in the landslide that swept Ohio last November. Probably no other Democrat in Ohio could draw more support from among the ranks of the G. O. P. voters, in addition to his own party vote. In fact, so strong is Judge Nichols in the hearts of the people that more than one Republican newspaper in Ohio deserted their party candidates in the last election to lend support to the judicial aspirant who crested for himself a monument for ability and integrity and service that commanded admiration.

Vic Donahy hasn't indicated that he desires to seek the Governorship again. In fact, he is talked of more strongly for the position of Treasurer of State, where he could exercise daily his watchdog of the state's strong box. But Vic has bought himself a coal mine down in southern Ohio and apparently isn't eager to chase after any old state office.

In the discussion of possible candidates for Governor next time, our own city has not been overlooked, the name of J. H. Goetz having come to the fore more than once on one occasion. Mr. Goetz has never indicated by word or act that he would consider a gubernatorial nomination. As a matter of fact, he is not a seeker for any office, but there are times when the office seeks the man instead of the man seeking the office. Mr. Goetz is worthy of any honor his party might bestow upon to use his influence in favor of tariff him.

It isn't often that such a stand-pat, dyed-in-the-wool G. O. P. newspaper like the Toledo Blade permits itself to criticize its own party or any member thereof, but the action of the state senate in killing the Schrimper bill afforded the reason for one of the rare instances wherein the newspaper has departed from the straight and narrow path of party fealty.

The senate mangled the woman's minimum wage bill—killed it by craft and subterfuge, so there is no official record of the ayes and nays. A lot of other mean things are said by the Toledo newspaper concerning the members of the Senate who were in on the killing. It is considered likely that the minimum wage issue is not dead and that it will hob up again two years from now and be fought out in the open, on the burning ground of a few legislative guerrillas who then will be politically dead beyond all hope of resurrection, as the peeved Toledo trippin' rider puts it.

The original bill had the support of Governor Davis apparently. He declared for it in open session of the Senate committee on manufactures and commerce, which recommended a weak substitute. The substitute provided for five elective officials—the lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, state auditor and state treasurer—to constitute the minimum wage board.

The substitute was not acceptable to Governor Davis, for the reason that it did not afford the opportunity for the creation of more appointive positions. Harry is long on that score, y'know. Friends of the original Schrimper bill admit that it would be fatal to entrust such responsibility to professional politicians, each one of whom has his own game of political preferment to play.

It is so seldom that the general public is treated to the spectacle of a Republican paper finding fault with anything, even to the slightest degree, its party does, that the incident afforded by the Toledo paper is unusual at least. When a partisan paper can't approve the acts of its own party representatives, it is useless to expect others to do so. Close scrutiny of the Schrimper bill might reveal a good and sufficient reason for its rejection, after all.

Our Congressman John L. Cable has decided to make a run-in for a lot of those captured German cannon, for distribution among municipalities in his district, for park beautification of cities. It was quite natural for John to make tender of the first piece available to his home city of Lima.

The communication was addressed to Mayor F. A. Burkhardt and by that official brought to the attention of council. The local legislative body, echoing the general public sentiment, advised the mayor to convey its respects to our John and tell him to shoot.

We want a cannon. We have several, but can use more. It's like having a lot of doctors in a small town; there's always room for one more. The artillery that lends a military air to the court house grounds here is of antiquated U. S. type, so we'll be getting something distinctive if a German gun is shipped here.

There's going to be freight costs and a bill for erecting the gun in a public place, but if council can't dig up the money, it's likely the public will, by subscription. Your promise has been given, John. We're expecting the gun. And thank you.

Representative Simeon D. Fess has come to the fore with a plan to revise taxes. It's a measure to which he pins a great amount of faith, altho its provisions indicate something in the way of a long drawn and circuitous route to attain the coveted journey end in the land of ideal taxation. Simeon dropped his resolution in the hopper in Washington, which provides for the appointment of a commission of eleven to inquire into the question of Federal taxation and recommend to congress such revision of existing tax laws as it may deem advisable. The President will name the commission, three from the Senate, three from the House and five from civil life.

This commission, if appointed, is to file its report not later than July 1. Of course, Simeon's resolution provides for pickin' for the commission, $25,000 for expenses, altho the commission is to draw no pay.

Sombody always tells tale out of school and takes the joy out of pleasant anticipations by releasing information that is not intended for public consumption—not at all. This same applies to the appointment of Andrew Mellon, new secretary of the treasury. Mellon is half owner of the Overholt distillery, with over a million gallons of whisky in bond. Since it is practically up to the treasury department to bring about a proper enforcement of the prohibition laws and see to it that Uncle Sam gets his bit in the way of revenue from red liquor, the prohibitionists are probably wondering where they're going to get off. Whether it was the enormous wealth of Mellon, his commanding ability or his stock of whisky that resulted in the shelving of Governor Lowden, General Dawes and others for the treasury berth, isn't bulletined.

Brand Whitlock, United States minister to Belgium under the Wilson administration, may be retained by President Harding in that important position. King Albert of Belgium has requested that Whitlock remain and as Brand was never considered firmly anchored to the Democratic party, President Harding may overlook the fact that the Toledo man was appointed by President Wilson and keep him in Belgium. Whitlock wasn't in this country during the campaign last year, but immediately after the election the text of a cable he sent to Harding confirmed pretty positively Democratic suspicions that the Minister to Belgium rather preferred the election of Harding.

It is recalled that there was a proposition in 1912 to make Whitlock the Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio. The same thing wouldn't get a rise in any orthodox Democratic headquarters now, very probably. The state of affairs may be explained by the statement that it wasn't the Democratic party that Whitlock found fault with, but rather the fact that he never did hit it off very well with Governor Cox, it is said.

That women are to invade the field in Ohio next year as candidates for congress is considered assured, with an announcement along that line made in Columbus by Mrs. Harriett Taylor Upton, that she plans to have ten women enter the contest for Republican nomination. "I do not see why women should not have at least ten representatives in this state," she said. "There are at least as many women voters now as men."

Mrs. Upton said she did not expect to see any woman come out next year as a candidate for either Governor or United States Senator, but she is quoted as saying that she would not be at all surprised to see women candidates for nomination for Lieutenant Governor and perhaps some of the other subordinate positions in the state government. In such an event 'twould be quite easy, very likely, to forecast the outcome. With men and women candidates on a party ticket for nomination, the nomination of women would probably be contingent upon more women than men voting. There's no disparagement about this statement, but it means exactly what it says, altho it's only an opinion, that women would vote for women and men vote for men, for the most part.

Summed up, boiled down, analyzed and presented in the fewest possible words for hurried information, any way you may wish to take it, the only action taken by the Legislature on the ever-present problem of taxation is a measure that permits cities and other political subdivisions to break the Smith law limitations for three years on a majority vote of the electors and authorizing cities to break the Smith law limitations this year.

That, fellow sufferers in the tax paying game, is the extent of the "relief" you was promised. As you have already divined, doubtless, whether you get "relief" from tax limitation is up to you and your vote. And if you do, you thereby agree to pay more tax for the privilege of getting more money for your city to spend. There is the thing in a nutshell. It's about the meanest kind of tax legislation you have ever been afforded. Maybe the Legislature had in mind the saying: "A fool and his money are soon parted." But, you can feel as you please about it.

Mrs. Comstock Tells How Cuticura Healed Child's Eczema

"My little daughter had eczema when she was eighteen months old. The eruptions on her face were large and red and itched and scaled over with a black scale. These were small, warty places on her scalp which turned to a soft white scale. She was terribly disfigured and restless at night. I began using Cuticura Soap and it was a great help, but not until I began using Cuticura Ointment, together with the Cuticura Soap, did the eruptions entirely leave. She was healed." (Signed) Mrs. J. A. Comstock, 215 S. 13th St., Richmond, Ind.

Marmon Price Reduction

The Talk of the Week!

Drop from $5000 to $3985 creates a nation-wide discussion of fine car values. Marmon 34 now on 1922 price basis

LAST Monday morning the famous Marmon 34 quadrupled its appeal among discriminating motorists. Thousands of people, hitherto anxious to own a Marmon 34, suddenly found it within their reach.

Based on 1922 prices, the reduction has proved an irresistible appeal to men who understand values. Particularly when one obtains the identical $5000 Marmon 34, without the slightest cheapening. All the extra equipment is included.

This $3985 car—improved and refined—is the finest Marmon ever built. Never in recent years has there been such an amazing situation nor such an opportunity to obtain a deluxe car at a comparable price.

It simply puts the Marmon 34 into a class of its own. No car at $3985 can compare with the Marmon in design and construction. Its performance, its style, all its superiorities, give it a distinct position.

The announcement of 1922 prices NOW has brought instant response. So there is no need to warn you that you should place your order early so as to insure prompt delivery.

SLEEVE VALVE MOTOR IMPROVES WITH USE

WILLYS-KNIGHT

The Blue Ribbon Motor

90% of all cars have poppet-valve motors because there are no patents on them. They are common property.

The Sleeve-Valve Motor is not common property. It is strongly protected by patents in this country and abroad. Its sleeves slide up and down on a film of oil. It is leased by the inventor to an exclusive number of makers of exclusive cars.

It is used in one of England's finest automobiles. It is identified with the most famous car in France. It is inseparably allied with the greatest automobile in Belgium.

But the Willys-Knight is the first automobile in the world to use the Sleeve-Valve Motor in a car of moderate price.

NATIONAL GUARD REORGANIZED

How New Plan Affects Colonel Horner, Here for Visit.

Lieutenant Colonel Harry C. Horner, to arrive in Lima Sunday for a visit at the home of his father, Jack Horner, is very much interested in the plans for the reorganization of the Ohio National Guard now rapidly forming.

Modern methods are being applied, proposed by Colonel Joseph S. Horner, who would put the state organization on a basis similar to that of the regular army.

It is found that present laws conflict, in that Ohio statutes do not coincide with Federal measures concerning guardsmen. It is interesting to note that Ohio is the first state to take steps toward reorganization of its soldier body, patterning after the plan of the regular army.

Our fellow townsmen, Assistant Adjutant General, Lieutenant Colonel Harry C. Horner, under the new plan will be required to perform such duties as may be assigned to him by his chief, Adjutant General George Florence and also formulation of these policies and supervision of purchases of real estate, commodities, equipment and supplies; settlement of claims against the state, approval of bonds and sale of surplus materials.

The Ohio National Guard, with almost 7,200 officers and enlisted men, now ranks third among the states. By June, 1921, it must have a strength of 7,200 men; by June, 1922, 10,800 men; June, 1923, 16,200 men; and June, 1924, 19,800.

The national defense act, passed last year, requires that at the end of five years (1924) the strength of the guard must be 800 for each representative in Congress. Ohio has 22 Congressmen and two Senators, constituting a strength of 19,800.

Colonel Horner will arrive here Sunday from Salem, Mrs. Horner preceded him to this city.

MANY NEW HOMES AND APARTMENTS TO BE ERECTED HERE THIS SEASON

J. C. Stipp to Plat 82 Acres on N. West-st.

MUST PREPARE FOR FUTURE

C. C. Housing Committee Lists Construction.

Following a canvass to determine the needs of home seekers in Lima the housing committee of the Chamber of Commerce is taking a census of the homes now under construction or contemplated, in order to discover the extent to which this need will be met.

It has been learned that there will be a number of new homes and apartments constructed this summer. A large number of these will be for rental purposes and will materially relieve the shortage existing here.

There are undoubtedly a number of projects not yet made public which will help to clear up the situation and this committee would like to have these reported by Monday noon if possible.

All those contemplating the building of homes are asked to communicate with C. E. Leist, R. L. Pletcher or C. E. Lynch and make known their plans. This information should be in before the meeting to be held Monday at 4 p. m. in order to permit the working out of complete plans at that time.

An 82-acre farm on N. West-st. opposite St. Gerard's has been purchased by J. C. Stipp from Joseph Erb, Cincinnati real estate operator, thru G. E. Leist. This tract is being laid out in lots and Stipp expects to commence the building of several homes in the near future. As these are completed and sold, others will be constructed. This is on the direct road to the State Hospital, in a very beautiful section of the city and will not be surprising if considerable building is seen in the different allotments located there.

"Lima must prepare for the future," says one of the men prominent in local business circles. "Those who will be rewarded financially are those who believe that this city will continue to grow and will prepare for it." Going farther, he shows that many projects put across in the past were confronted by disaster and opposition. The Citizens Loan and Building Co. was condemned when it erected its present building. It was stated, at the time, that there wouldn't be enough of a demand for offices to keep the building full of tenants. Today it has a large waiting list.

Another building was constructed last year. The builder was afraid to erect more than two stories because he did not believe that there was enough of a demand to fill the upper floors. When his building was completed he was overwhelmed with prospective tenants. Now he wishes that he had erected a larger building.

These are but two examples out of many that could be pointed out and serve to show that those who canvass the situation and prepare for future growth will be amply rewarded. Those who don't, will probably wish some day they had.

Extensive alterations and improvements will be made on the Orpheum theatre, which has come under the control of John Muller, of Anderson, Ind. It is understood that around $20,000 will be expended in making these changes.

An entire new front will be built and a canopy placed over the sidewalk. The interior will be redecorated and the seating arrangement changed. When all changes have been made the Orpheum will be one of the most beautiful theatres in the city.

Martin L. Pierce, manager of the Hoover Suction Sweeper Co., Canton, will address the Lima Real Estate Board at their monthly banquet. This meeting will be held Friday evening, at 6:30, at the Barr hotel. His subject will be "If I Were a Realtor" and it is said that it has proven very popular wherever it has been given.

Notwithstanding the bad weather the early part of the week, a number of tracts of land in the new allotment, "Sunkist Acres" have been sold. The idea of owning more than just enough land for a house is meeting with popular favor. The Park Land Co. is very optimistic as to future conditions here and is well satisfied with the success being met.

Courtesy & Zeiss have reported the following transactions for the week. A house on Sugar-st has been purchased by Helen Williams. The J. M. Ludwig home on Franklin-st has been sold to F. Cox. A house at 741 Holly-st was sold to Daniel and Mary Murphy. The F. W. Zeiss property at 114 Holmes-ave has been purchased by Elias and Amanda Smith of St. Mary's.

J. L. HEATH ESTATE PARTITION IS SOUGHT

Partition suit to secure settlement of the estate of James L. Heath was filed in common pleas court Saturday by Paul M. Heath, against Ollie B. Barber, Milan Barber, Ralph Heath, Gusta Heath, James R. Heath, a minor, aged 19, Vivian Heath and Sarah Heath.

The property in question is a residence at 526 E. High-st., against which the Alliance Savings & Loan company holds a mortgage. The concern is made defendant in the suit on this account.

Heath and three of the defendants each own an undivided one-quarter interest in the house. The court is asked to set off his share and in case this cannot be done to order the property sold and effect a division.

TO HEAR MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL IN CASE OF ROSA CARBONE

Motion for new trial in the case of Rosa Carbone, convicted by a jury in common pleas court as the author of blackhand letters sent to Kliment Naum, 1219 S. Main-st, from Akron, will probably be heard on Monday or Tuesday, officials stated Saturday.

Prosecutor Eugene Lippincott is of the opinion that the motion for new trial made by T. R. Hamilton, Mrs. Carbone's counsel, will be overruled and that she will be sentenced to prison by Judge Fred C. Becker.

That a prison term will be imposed by the court is considered more than probable, as since assuming office Judge Becker has shown little leniency in cases that demanded a severe penalty. Mrs. Carbone may be one of the few women, if not the only one ever sent to the penitentiary from Allen-co.

Date for trial of Ross Carbone, her husband and alleged fellow conspirator, has not been fixed.

Daughters of Veterans will meet in regular session, Tuesday at Memorial hall. Initiation. Press committee.

Does It Pay to Read Advertisements

One week ago today our reopening announcement was printed in this paper. The same day we received a phone message that a certain engineer at the Solar Refinery (name and address may be had at office) was suffering very severe pains in his back caused by a strain.

The first adjustment was given Monday at his house. The patient was confined to his bed and still suffering great pain.

The second adjustment was given at the house Tuesday. The patient was feeling much better but was instructed to remain in bed.

The third adjustment was given at the office, 403 Opera Block, Wednesday. The patient wanted to go back to work but was advised to wait another day.

The fourth adjustment was given Thursday and the patient returned to work Thursday night, having lost time from work only three nights instead of three weeks. He says it pays to read the advertisements.
